U. S. LAUNCHES NEW LUZON INVASION, LANDS ARMY TO ISOLATE BATAAN JAPS

Reds Within 73 Miles Of Berlin in New Spurt

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The Red army thrust within 73 miles of Berlin yesterday, capturing the town of Stolzenberg in Brandenburg province five miles northeast of Landsberg. This deepest penetration of the Reich was accomplished in a 20-mile westward advance from Driesen, Pomeranian town captured by Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army Monday. Capture of Stolzenberg was announced in the regular nightly communique broadcast from Moscow, which made no point of the fact that it represented the Russians' closest approach to the Nazi capital.

PORT THREATENED

The Moscow radio early Monday announced the Red Army also was less than 50 miles from Stettin, the port for Berlin on the Baltic. Stolzenberg is 52 miles southeast of Stettin.

The Germans yesterday had stressed Zhukov's gains farther south on the front west of Poznan and directly east of Berlin, where, they said, Soviet spearheads had come within 80 miles of Berlin.

Kustrin, important rail communications center 41 miles of Berlin and 32 miles southwest of Stalzenberg, is in danger of being outflanked from the northeast and is threatened with frontal assault as well.

The Soviet communique disclosed the thrust down the Warthe river valley along that stream's right banks to Stolzenberg through comparatively open country.

TWIN THREAT

The advance appeared to threaten Berlin and Stettin equally.

"The capture of Stettin," said Robert Magidoff, NBC commentator broadcasting from Moscow, "would expose Berlin to the danger of a sweeping outflanking maneuver which would create a crack more gigantic and of far-reaching consequences for the Germans than even the Cauldron of East Prussia."

"The entire Polish corridor and practicaly all of Pomerania would be in the bag and, with them, fresh scores of Hitler's rapidly vanishing divisions."

The Paris radio reported without confirmation last night that Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, German chief of staff and commander in chief on the eastern front, had been replaced by Col. Gen. Lotha Rendulic.

Rendulic is former commander in chief in Norway and Finland. Reports from Stockholm last week said Rendulic had been transferred to the eastern front.

Guderian is a tank expert who won his first fame in the unsuccessful German battle for Moscow in 1941.

LEAVES REICH

The Paris broadcast said Guderian "has left Germany," but did not say where he had gone.

Hitler replaced him with Rendulic, it added, because of the latter's proven Nazi zeal and prospects that he would wage a fanatical fight to the finish.

The Soviet communique showed also that Zhukov's front in northeastern Germany had been extended at both ends to a width of 160 miles, the day's gains reaching 48 miles northeast of previous points to Linde in Pomerania, and eight miles southward to Unruh-

DEWEY DECLARES STATE OF EMERGENCY IN SHIVERING FOOD-SHORT NEW YORK

ALBANY, Jan. 30.—(UP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey proclaiming a state of emergency throughout New York state, today ordered all state forces mobilized to assist in alleviating conditions brought about by food and coal shortages.

His order came shortly after Albany merchants voted to close all retail stores and while officials of other cities and villages were planning emergency measures of varying degree to safeguard present supplies of coal. Albany merchants, along with grill and tavern keepers, voted to close their doors tonight for an indefinite period.

It was estimated that there was only a six-day fuel supply left in the state. State officials said no more fuel was on the way.

Dewey said transportation tie-ups, snow congestion, shortages of dairy and poultry feed, and the impairment of food and coal shipments caused him to act. Mayor Thomas E. Kennedy had previously acted to close stores in Syracuse, along with schools and amusement places.

In Buffalo, steel operations today were cut to 23 per cent of capacity, the lowest production figure since 1940. Open-hearth operations have been seriously curtailed at three major steel plants.

Hitler Orders Nazis: 'Fight On!'

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler proclaimed to the world tonight that Germany will fight to the finish—"fight on no matter where and no matter under what circumstances until final victory crowns our efforts."

The Fuehrer, addressing the German nation by radio from what was described as his headquarters on the 12th anniversary of his ascendancy to the chancellorship, declared that neither the dire military situation on the eastern front nor difficulties at home would make the Nazis capitulate.

Hitler spoke for 20 minutes. It was a gloomy speech, but delivered with all Hitler's old-time eloquence, his voice ranging from calm tones at the beginning to peaks of intensity as he called upon every ablebodied man and woman, and even the sick and infirm, to give all in the final battle.

IDENTITY NOT DOUBTED

Veteran listeners said there seemed no doubt that it was Hitler's voice.

With Soviet armies pouring across the German borders into th provinces of Brandenburg and Pomerania, Hitler declared, "a horrid fate is in progress in the east, where tens and hundreds of thousands of people are being exterminated," but he asserted this fate "will be mastered in the end in spite of all reverses and stern tests."

He called upon Divine aid and exhorted his people:

"I expect every German to do his duty to the last. Every fit man must stake his life and body. The sick and infirm or otherwise dispensable must work to the last ounce of their strength.

SLURS WOODROW WILSON

As if to block a possible appeal by the Big Three for the German people to throw out their Nazi leaders and surrender, Hitler commented that Allied statesmen have "quite openly outlined the fate of the German people" and added:

"As a ruthless National Social-

Statesmen Speeding to 'Big 3' Talk

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Statesmen of the United States and Britain apparently were converging on an undisclosed spot tonight for preliminary conferences or even the Big Three meeting itself as British and American leaflets raining on enemy lines urged the Germans to surrender.

Outside of the closest official circles nobody knew when or where President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin were to meet, and those who did know were not giving the slightest hint.

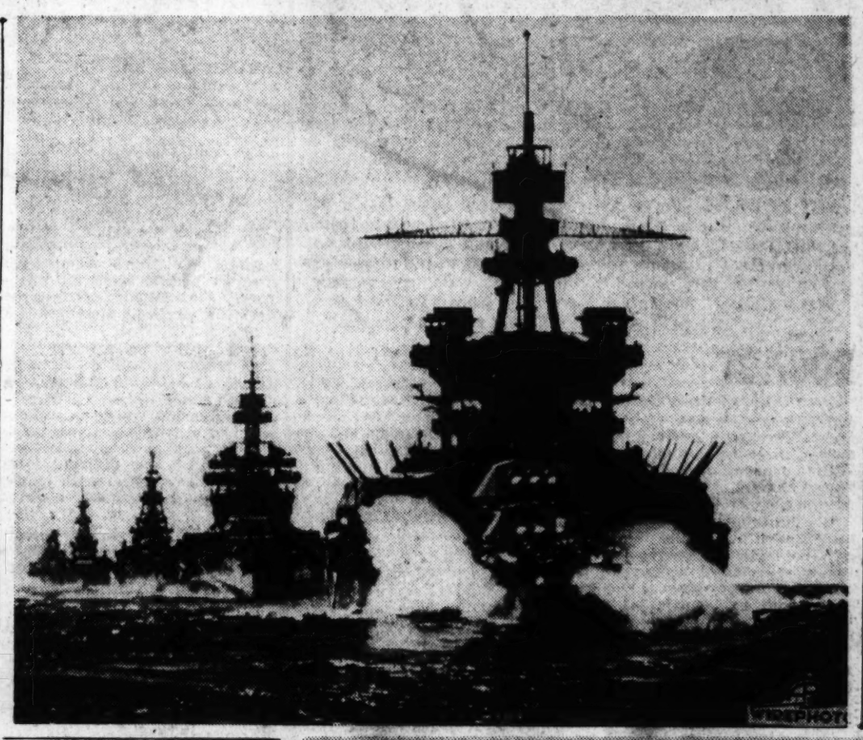

German and Swiss broadcasts said the Big Three meeting already was under way or about to begin. The best guess in London was that the parley would be held in the Soviet Union or close to its borders. Some quarters, however, thought the meeting might be in Italy.

The Germans said the conference would occur "somewhere in the Near East or the Mediterranean." Nazi agencies declared, however, that they had been unable to check Spanish reports that Mr. Roosevelt had left Washington accompanied by a large staff.

There has been some speculation that the Big Three session might produce a joint immediate surrender call to Germany.

The leaflets with which the Al-

Base at Subic Bay Objective of Drive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

In a surprise, unopposed amphibious operation a new American Army has landed on the coast of Zambales province, West Central Luzon island, and is heading inland to take a former major American naval base and seal off the Japanese on historic Bataan peninsula.

Gen. MacArthur reported late yesterday that soldiers of the American Eighth Army landed between San Narciso and San Antonio, southwestern Zambales, without losing a man, a ship or a protecting plane.

This was the first mention of the Eighth Army in action in the war. It is commanded by Lt. Gen Robert L. Eichelberger, who commanded the Buna campaign on New Guinea's east coast.

The American flag, planted by Filipinos, was so clearly visible on the Subic bay shoreline as the convoy of more than 100 vessels approached, that Rear Adm. Arthur Struble called off the customary prelanding bombardment. He was assured there were no Japanese ashore and had not been for a long time.

The Americans drove inland 11 miles from the beachhead. They seized the town of San Marcelino and its airfield and reached Castillejos, only 11 miles on a good road from the prewar naval base at Olongapo on Subic Bay.

The road reaches eastward across the mouth of the Bataan peninsula and then curves northeastward to San Fernando, capital of Pampanga. Capture of San Fernando was reported by Gen. MacArthur late Monday.

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 30.—(UP)—The retention of the Marianas islands by the United States and their establishment and maintenance as "the Pearl Harbor of the Western Pacific" was urged today by Artemus L. Gates, assistant secretary of the Navy for air, at a press conference.

American airmen unloaded 109 tons of bombs on Corregidor, just 50 air-line miles southeast of the new Zambales beachhead.

Gen. MacArthur's communique made no mention of the Pampanga southern front. His Monday announcement said patrols were far in advance of the main forces at San Fernando. This placed the advanced elements within 30 miles of Manila.

On the northern Luzon front the Japanese suffered heavy losses as Americans mopped up the Rosario sector. Other U. S. troops pushed eastward seven miles from San Quintin, greatly increasing the threat to the only Luzon north-south highway in Japanese hands.

TAKE 23 LUZON AIR FIELDS

Japanese resistance pockets were being cleaned out of the hills west of Fort Stotsenburg in the Clark Field area.

MacArthur reported that the Yanks so far have captured 23 Luzon air fields.

American fliers struck again at the Cavite naval base on Manila bay, setting off large explosions and fires.

Meanwhile the Tokyo radio said 36 American Superfortresses at-

House Group Ends Work On Constitution

Vote on Poll Tax Issue Assured Today By Speaker Harris

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

The house consitution committee has completed its work on the revised constitution, after adding two senatorial districts, and defeating efforts to permit operation of power plants by cities and counties.

Pledging to keep the house in session today until a vote is taken on the poll tax, Speaker Harris said the house would take up the revised constitution tomorrow and will meet from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. daily. He predicted little opposition to the constitution as amended by the house committee.

At its final session of yesterday, the committee also killed efforts of Druid Hills school district to be exempt from a proposed new law abolishing rural school districts. Druid Hills wanted permission to levy a 5-mills tax to be used for its school, in addition to the proposed 15-mills county-wide levy, Rep. Hubert, of DeKalb, said. Rep. Durden, of Dougherty, objected to making any exceptions.

FOLLOWS SENATE GROUP

The house committee followed the senate group's example in defeating a proposed amendment to give cities and counties permission to issue revenue certificates with which to build power plants. The vote was 40 to 0.

The amendment, which originated in the city of Valdosta and the city of Waycross, was opposed by Reps. Connell, of Lowndes, and Hinson, of Ware. Connell is an attorney for the Georgia Power and Light Company, not an affiliate of Georgia Power Company. Connell objected to giving a city council the right to issue bonds to enter the public utility business, without submission to a vote of the people. A city has the opportunity now to go into the power business by having a local constitutional amendment passed for a bond issue, and letting the people vote on it, he observed.

NO STATE SUPERVISION

He said the city-operated plants would not be supervised by the Georgia Public Service Commission, and that the rates charged and the service rendered would not be regulated.

The committee adopted without objection, a proposal to increase the senatorial districts from 52 to 54 so that the districts may be redivided more equally. The plan was offered by Reps. Kennon, of Cook, and Connell, of Lowndes. The group placed back into the constitution a provision fixing salaries of pardon and parole board members at $5,000 each. It previously had stricken the salary reference from the constitution. Rep. Marion Ennis, of Baldwin, feared the board would be at the mercy of politics if its pay were not protected by the constitution.

The committee turned down a move to provide optional plans of selecting county school boards. The constitution calls for appointment of board members by grand juries.

ALEX RESIGNS; DODD APPOINTED

Bill Alexander resigned as head coach of Georgia Tech football after 25 years of service yesterday. The Tech athletic board then named Bobby Dodd, assistant for 14 years, as head coach—Tech's third coach in 41 years.

For complete details of the coaching change, see the sports section.

MIGHTY SEVENTH FLEET ON JOB—U. S. sea strength played a vital role in Gen. MacArthur's invasion of Luzon. Top photo shows powerful battleships of the U. S. Seventh Fleet moving to take stations for the bombardment that preceded the landings. Bottom picture shows five LSTs carrying supplies to American troops fighting their way south toward Manila. The map reveals the latest surprise landing by MacArthur, just above the Bataan peninsula (arrow). The Americans met no resistance and soon pushed inland to within 11 miles of Olongapo.

Hodges, Patton Rip Siegfried Line

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The American First and Third armies smashed into the outer defenses of the Siegfried line today in an attack approaching major-offensive scale and gained as much as four miles on the frigid, snow-covered western front.

Starting as a series of local thrusts, the assault picked up speed and, after several additional divisions had been thrown in, eventually involved well over 100,000 men. It further increased the pressure along a 40-mile front on German military leaders who already are robbing their westwall defenses to bolster positions on the crumbling eastern front.

The doughboys overran a number of Siegfried line outposts and frontline correspondents said the Germans had previously evacuated the positions.

BRIDGEHEAD EXPANDED

Two of the American flanks in the new attack are in Germany and the center of the line is in eastern Belgium. The front extends from a point just south of the Aachen breach in the Siegfried line where U. S. attacks were launched on both sides of the Roer river, to the Third Army's Wel-chenhausen bridgehead along the Our river which Lt. Gen. Patton's troops expanded to a depth of a mile and a half and a width of four miles.

Meanwhile, the French First Army, incorporating American units, crossed the Colmar canal at several points in southern Alsace. Front dispatches said Allied troops were engaged in hard fighting around Fort Schwihr about one and one-half miles south of Colmar in their drive to encircle the city.

From the Canadian front in Holland there were reports that the Germans apparently were withdrawing troops from the line in order to transfer them to the eastern front.

WAIST-DEEP SNOW

American armor and infantry swept forward through waist-deep snowdrifts and a light snowstorm which changed to rain in near-zero temperatures. The First Army drove ahead in an explosive nine-hour attack in the rugged forest

Temperature to Range From 26 to 40 Degrees

The weather in the Atlanta area today will be "fair and colder," according to Forecaster A. J. Knarr, who says temperatures for the day will range between 26 and 40 degrees.

Yesterday's high was 49 degrees at 4 p. m., the low was 26 at 8 a. m.

LEUKEMIA DEATH RACE BEGINS

Navy Flying Sailor From Pacific To Bedside of Stricken Wife

Yeoman Third Class Maxwell R. Mentzer's race with death has begun.

The United States Navy has set in motion its vast machinery to span thousands of miles so that the sailor may be with his wife, whom physicians have given only two or three more weeks to live.

From the Navy Department in Washington yesterday the message crackled over the air waves to Yeoman Mentzer's commanding officer with the Seventh Fleet somewhere in the southwest Pacific. In substance, the message said:

"Order Yeoman Mentzer to report immediately to the commandant of the Sixth Naval District at Charleston, S. C. Give him a Number Two priority for travel by air. He will be granted a 30-day furlough on his arrival at Charleston."

The swift action from the Navy Department came after The Constitution telephoned to the office of Navy Secretary Forrestal. Already in the office at Washington was a letter from the Atlanta Red Cross, verifying the condition of Mentzer's wife, Mrs. Martha Jean Mentzer, mother of two children.

Mrs. Mentzer is a patient at the Jesse Parker Williams hospital, suffering from a rare blood disease, myelogeous leukemia. Last week she expressed a wish to see her husband, and it was then that first efforts were made to bring her sailor husband to her bedside. He is in New Guinea.

Rep. Robert Ramspeck and other members of the Georgia congressional delegation were contacted, in addition to the Red Cross.

The Constitution's telephone call direct to Forrestal's office brought results a few hours later. The word had gone out to the Pacific to return Mentzer to Atlanta. He is probably on his way by now. Meanwhile, the condition of his wife remains unchanged. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Sampson, were notified of the orders for their son-in-law, and were overjoyed that prompt action had been obtained.

LIFE IN A GOLD FISH BOWL

Lauren Bacall Is Next For 'Bad Man' Bogart

By INEZ ROBB.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(INS)—Humphrey Bogart, the screen's tough-and-ready Romeo, fortified himself with a little hair of the dog this afternoon and simultaneously announced (1) his engagement to the films' current glamor girl, Lauren Bacall, and (2) his impending divorce from the present Mrs. Bogart, the former Mayo Methot.

"Sure, baby and I are engaged," Bogart declared with the characteristic belligerence that looks so good on him in the movies. Baby is his pet name for Miss Bacall, who is arriving in New York from Hollywood this weekend.

"I know I open my great big fat yap too much, and maybe this announcement is a little premature. But what the hell? I never could keep a secret," Hollywood's pet Bogey man said with the machinegun delivery and the gruff, rasping voice that sets his feminine admirers to swaying like a chandelier in a cyclone.

"I live in a g— d— goldfish bowl, anyway, and have for 10 years. Ever try to keep a secret in a goldfish bowl?" he demanded in his drawing room at the Hotel Gotham. On the mantel three larger-than-life photos of the torrid Miss Bacall radiated such heat

IT HAPPENED IN MEXICO

Errol Flynn, Redhead Wed, Says 'Bride's' Seaman-Dad

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30.—(UP)—Errol Flynn, yachtsman and movie star, and red-haired Nora Eddington, former aircraft machinist, were married in Mexico during August, 1943, the girl's father, Jack Eddington, a chief yeoman in the Navy, said tonight.

"The marriage is no secret to me," Eddington said, explaining that his daughter had lived in Mexico most of the time since and that Flynn had been with her much of the time.

He said he understood that Nora had a daughter, but she had told him nothing about it.

(In Mexico City, Flynn declined comment except to say it was the third or fourth time he had been reported married. A "Mrs. Nora Eddington Flynn" gave birth to a girl baby in a Mexico City hospital Jan. 10 and hospital attaches said the actor had visited the mother and baby. They left the hospital Jan. 26.)

"If it's so, I'm glad to hear it," he said. "I think it's fine."

Eddington said Flynn and Nora were married during a vacation trip in August, 1943.

"I think it was in Acapulco, but it might have been in Mexico City."

At the time of Flynn's and Miss Eddington's Acapulco vacation—during which Eddington says they were married—both the actor and his then 19-year-old girl friend vigorously denied they were in love or that they had been married.

The couple met during January, 1943, when Flynn was on trial on charges of statutory rape and Miss Eddington was cashier at the cigaret counter in the skyscraper Hall of Justice, where the trial took place. Flynn was acquitted.

Miss Eddington was a pal of all the reporters, too, during that trial, which resulted from charges by Peggy LaRue Satterlee and Betty Hansen, moviestruck teenagers.

She and Flynn continued to be seen together in film colony night spots. Miss Eddington switched from cigaret girl to apprentice machinist at Lockheed Aircraft and then came the Acapulco holiday.

Flynn flew back from Mexico and said "no comment" on the marriage reports. Nora flew back and denied the marriage reports.

Flynn was divorced by French-born Actress Lili Damita in 1941. They were married in Yuma, Ariz., in 1935.

Georgia Power Pays City Tax Of $474,473

Atlanta's biggest taxpayer—the Georgia Power Company — has boosted 1944 city receipts by $474,473, representing a 3 per cent gross receipt tax on $18,394,043 for that year.

Jackson P. Dick, vice president and division manager of the company, yesterday delivered the check for payment to Mayor Hartsfield. The 1944 gross receipts tax incidentally was the largest in history, exceeding the $457,074 paid into the municipal treasury for 1943 by more than $17,000.

While Dick was delivering payment of the power company's 1944 gross receipt taxes, the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, sweetened the kitty with another $46,287, representing its gross receipt taxes for 1944. The telephone payment compares with $46,203 it paid into municipal coffers for1943.

Largest receipts of the power company, according to an itemized statement submitted by Dick, were $10,146,733 from sales of electric power and steam, and $8,153,716 from the transportation system.

Under existing laws the Atlanta school department will receive $142,141 of the power company payment, and $13,861 from the telephone payment, representing its 30 per cent of the total receipts.

Lt. Rudolph Reported Killed In Pacific

Lt Shipley Rudolph, 21, an Army pilot, was killed in the Pacific Jan. 16, according to word received yesterday by his aunt, Mrs. S. Russell Bridges.

Lt. Rudolph was the son of the late Mrs. Chauncey D. Beadle, who died several years ago at her home in Asheville, N. C., and of the late Dr. Latimer Rudolph, a Gainesville, Ga., physician, who was killed during the World War.

With his two brothers, Capt. Paget Rudolph and Sgt. Latimer Rudolph, Lt. Rudolph frequently visited in Atlanta, and had many friends here.

HIS FOURTH—Three marriages on the rocks failed to immunize Movie Bad Man Humphrey Bogart from Cupid's darts. He has announced his engagement to Lauren Bacall, glamor girl, the wedding to take place as soon as he is divorced by his third wife, the former Mayo Methot. Picture is a scorcher from "To Have and Have Not," Bogart's and Miss Bacall's latest picture.

BOGART

and light as made New York's cold spell seem but a passing breeze beyond the window panes.

The telephone shrilled suddenly. Bogart moaned afresh and reached for the tumbler of dog hair.

"I guess I tied one on last night," he said with the kind of slow, flat grin that bodes no good for anyone but the heroine of his films. "I chose this Oxford gray suit today to go with my complexion, and this yellow tie to emphasize its mottled aspect."

Just when he and the blond, sulphurous Miss Bacall will be married largely depends upon when and where the current Mrs. Bogart obtains a divorce.

"She agreed to give me a divorce," Bogart said confidently for a gent who has staged more reconciliations with the former Mayo Methot during a stormy marital career than Blondie and Dagwood.

AGREE ON SETTLEMENT

"At least we have agreed on a settlement and got to the preliminary stages," he said with less certainty. "I don't know where she'll get a divorce. California, I suppose.

"Mayo's a fine girl," Bogart added. "But we couldn't make a go of it. Hell, just say it was a clash of personalities."

This diagnosis of the Bogart marital ills will doubtless be regarded as the prize understatement of the week in Hollywood circles, where the battling Bogarts were always good for a few preliminary rounds in public or private.

"Sure, we used to fight like hell," Bogart said. "Frankly and offhand, I'm not the easiest guy in the world to live with. But I can't say that I think fighting is an extra, added attraction in any marriage. I don't want to end my life punch-drunk and walking on my heels."

"And you might say that my engagement to Baby has nothing to do with this divorce That was arranged a long, long time ago, and has nothing to do with Baby. She's a swell kid, and I'm afraid I've made it kinda tough for her by shooting off my big face the way I have. I've probably loused by everything."

Bogart refused to discuss Miss Bacall, other than to say he first met her when she was cast opposite him to "To Have and Have Not," the film that only a few months ago shot the unknown Miss Bacall to fame overnight. Since then they have made a second picture together, "The Long Sleep," which has not yet been released.

Despite three marriages, all of which have ended on the rocks, Bogart insists that he is anything but disillusioned about women.

"Hell, no, I think you're a wonderful institution!" he insisted. "You're nice to have around the house. You make a home of it."

The first woman who made a house a home for Bogart was Helen Mencken, the star of stage and radio, who divorced him in 1927. Then came Mary Phillips, and next, Mayo Methot, also of the movies. Miss Bacall is next in line.

Bogart is 45, while Miss Bacall is barely 20.

"But I'm held together with platinum wire, glue and the hair tonic I take internally. I'm well-preserved, don't you think, for an old guy?" he demanded, adding that a little shoe blacking conceals the white threads in his hair. It also conceals the fact his hair is powerful thin on top.

"It's wonderful to be in love again at my age," he continued. "You might say that I expect to be happily married, but that I don't ever expect to settle down."

tacked Northern Luzon while single B-29s raided Osaka and Kyoto, on Japan's main Honshu island, and reconnoitered Seoul, Korea. Such Superfort operations have not been reported by official American sources.

The chief of the Nippon aircraft bureau told the diet "the existing rate of aircraft production is far from satisfactory," and a Tokyo domestic broadcast castigated shirkers, doubters and black market operators and said slackness and insincerity "makes one think that it is because we are not fully conscious of the one question. . . . What if we should be defeated?"

The Japanese offensive in southeast China, designed to close the last Chinese-held section of the vital Canton-Hankow railway, rolled into new territory. The Chinese high command said the invaders stormed into Kukong, provisional capital of Kwantung province and took Chenshien, 80 miles south of Hengyang. Only 20 miles of the railway remain in Chinese hands. Control of that gap would give the Japanese a solid line of communications reaching from Manchuria to the Canton-Hongkong area.

In northern Burma the American Mars Task Force inflicted heavy losses on the Japanese withdrawing southward.

Lt. James Freeman, B-29 Airman, Missing

Lt. James L. Freeman, 29, husband of Virginia McWhorter Freeman, and a navigator on a B-29, is missing over the Pacific, his wife has been informed by the War Department.

Lt. Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Freeman, residing on Beattie avenue, is a graduate of Boys' High school. He had been in the Army about two years. He went overseas in December, and met his brother, Tommy Freeman, a member of the Merchant Marine, in Saipan, Dec. 23. The two spent Christmas together.

The official notice that he was missing was received Monday by Mrs. Freeman.

Cash Pours In To Fight Polio At Five Dances In Atlanta

By PAUL WARWICK.

Merry music and merrymaking gave a joyful gloss to a serious cause as thousands of Atlantans danced—to swell the fund for the increasing fight against infantile paralysis in Atlanta, in Georgia and throughout the United States.

Five dances in Atlanta last night and others throughout the state paid tribute to President Roosevelt on his birthday and sent thousands of dollars winging their way toward the war chest of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the nation-wide organization which is relentlessly pursuing research into the mysterious causes of the dread poliomyelitis, as the doctors call it, as well as holding itself in readiness to combat the epidemics when they arise.

WHERE THEY DANCED

Centers of activity last night perhaps were at the city auditorium and the Shrine mosque, where the nationally known bands of Tommy Tucker and Sammy Kaye respectively "gave out" generously with their rhythmic and expensive music. Dances were held simultaneously at the Ansley, Biltmore and Henry Grady hotels, to the music respectively of Curly Hicks, Bill Clarke and Nu Nu Chastain.

The dances were a climactic feature in the antipolio campaign which began Jan. 14 and ends formally today—with William K. Jenkins, of Atlanta, state director of the appeal, confident that the enthusiastic response which has been given all over the state will result in a record-breaking contribution to this humanitarian cause.

THOSE IN CHARGE

Al Belle Isle was chairman in charge of arrangements for the dances last night and Mike Benton was both producer and master of ceremonies of the floor show which toured the five dances. The show made its first appearance at the auditorium at 9:15 and began the fifth of its performances at the mosque at 11:30, with an hour and a half of dancing yet to go before the uniform closing hour of 1 a. m. observed at all the celebrations.

Rutherford L. Ellis has led the campaign in both Fulton county and the fifth congressional district, with the other two counties, DeKalb and Rockdale, under leadership of Bob Ingram and James E. Clay.

Many servicemen and women attended the dances last night, at an admission fee, for a couple, of 50 cents each, while the civilian celebrants contributed $1.80 per couple to the fund.

March of Dimes Ending Deferred Until Feb. 15

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The March of Dimes, to aid the fight against infantile paralysis, has been extended until Feb. 15, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announced today.

O'Connor said that although receipts so far showed that this year's March of Dimes would break previous records, many of the drive's events have been "snowed out, rained out and frozen out, or postponed because of lack of fuel." The drive was to have ended tomorrow.

Merged Hospital to Get Grady Pension, Rights

Employes of the Fulton-DeKalb county hospital will enjoy the same pension and civil service rights as are now accorded employes of Grady hospital, attorneys preparing to draft contracts to activate the authority have decided.

First drafts of proposed contracts to implement the authority and to begin its early operation will be completed within the next few days, and will be submitted to the affected governments when details are completed, according to an agreement reached yesterday.

The new authority is prepared to provide pension and civil service protection not only to workers now at Grady, but to those who may hereafter be employed by the authority.

FDR Thanks Nation for Polio Gifts

Too Busy To Take Personal Part in Birthday Fetes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight thanked the millions of Americans who use his birthday to back the fight against infantile paralysis.

His message was broadcast to the nation by Mrs. Roosevelt just before midnight, as the climax of a nation-wide celebration of the chief executive's 63rd birthday.

"We will never tolerate," he said, "a force that destroys the life, the happiness, the free future of our children, any more than we will tolerate the continuance on earth of the brutalities and barbarities of the Nazis or of the Japanese war lords.

UNREMITTING BATTLE

"We combat this evil enemy of disease at home just as unremittingly as we fight our evil enemies abroad."

The chief executive was taking no personal part in this year's birthday festivities. War tasks required all his attention. His whereabouts were not disclosed.

But here is the nation's capital, and in communities throughout America, his fellow countrymen attended benefit parties to help finance the campaign against the disease of which he himself was a victim.

"TESTAMENT TO YOUTH"

Mr. Roosevelt said his 63 years seemed very few to him because of the great generosity of Americans which has "made this day a testament of youth"—a promise to children that the bright tomorrow for which we fight throughout the world "will not be dimmed by the shadow of infantile paralysis at home.

During the past year, Mr. Roosevelt said, the past decade's work against infantile paralysis was put to its most rigorous test. The 1944 epidemic, he said, was the worst since 1916.

"But this time," he declared, "we were prepared with a nation-wide network of defense that your dimes and dollars enabled us to build."

GUIDING LIGHTS OF YOUTH SYMPHONY—Miss Anne Grace O'Callaghan, originator of the Atlanta Youth Symphony, welcomes Henry Sopkin, who arrived in Atlanta yesterday to conduct final rehearsals and the debut concert of the orchestra Sunday. Miss O'Callaghan is supervisor of music in the Atlanta high schools. Sopkin, a concert violinist as well as a conductor, is a member of the faculty of Woodrow Wilson City College, Chicago.

Sopkin Arrives To Conduct Youth Symphony

Henry Sopkin, who conducted his first symphony orchestra when he was a sophomore in a Chicago high school, will conduct the Atlanta Youth Symphony tonight in rehearsal for its debut concert Sunday.

Sopkin is proud of the fact that he is an American musician—by birth, name and training. He believes that the foreign conductor is on the wane in this country, and that within a few years after the war Americans will prefer music led by their fellow countrymen to that conducted by foreigners.

"FOREIGN NAME" INFLUX

"No so long ago musicians came over here from Europe heralded by a foreign name, a phony accent and press notices," he pointed out. "The press notices concerned their appearances with leading European symphony orchestras. A lot of people in this country sat back and laughed, because they knew that these musicians conducted orchestras which they themselves paid, in halls which they rented, before audiences which they hired.

"One prominent conductor has predicted that American conductors will come into their own within the next five years," Sopkin said, "and I'm inclined to agree with him."

SOPKIN'S BACKGROUND

Sopkin was brought here to conduct the Youth Symphony at the instigation of Miss Anne Grace O'Callaghan, supervisor of music in the Atlanta high schools. A member of the faculty of Woodrow Wilson City College in Chicago, he is also associate music editor of the Carl Fischer Publishing Company and the Mills Music Company. A native of Brooklyn, he attended Chicago public schools and studied at the American Conservatory of Music and other schools of music. He is a concert violinist as well as a conductor.

"I hope the Atlanta Youth Symphony will become a permanent organization," declared Sopkin, "and I'd like to have the opportunity of conducting it every year."

The program which the 99-piece orchestra will play Sunday was selected by Sopkin.

Bond Issue Holds Hope For Better School Conditions

Hope for eliminating housing deficiencies and establishing an ideal condition in local public education rest on adequate financing, including approval of the proposed $7,800,000 postwar bond issue to eliminate portable structures and improve school plants, the Atlanta board of education says in a statement issued through Miss Ira Jarrell, city school superintendent.

The statement was made in view of current discussions of school problems now under way in the Georgia legislature and Miss Jarrell termed it a "supplement to the Urban League report," which dealt with problems of Negro education in Atlanta.

Asserting that no major school improvement program has been undertaken in Atlanta since 1923, except for small improvements made from 1926 school bonds, and in 1936-39 by WPA, the statement cites housing deficiencies in almost every section of the city both white and Negro.

CONDITIONS COMPARED

While the statement itself does not specify the $7,800,000 bond issue directly, it sets out that bonds are the usual means of financing capital outlay programs.

The Urban League report of public school facilities for Negroes in Atlanta, is "timely and praiseworthy," but in a large number of particulars is out of date, the board statement points out asserting that a complete picture can best be shown by a comparison between existing conditions and those of 20 years ago.

The number of teachers assigned to teach double sessions in Negro elementary schools had been reduced from 120 in 1941-42 to 80 in 1944-45; the ratio of pupils to a teacher in Negro schools has been cut from 71 in 1941-42 to 64 in 1944-45; all pupils in Negro high schools, except the Washington High school annex, have the same length school day as white high school students; and many other improvements have been made to improve standards and to narrow the gap between facilities for white and colored students, the statement pointed out.

"While Atlanta is not sufficiently wealthy at this time to bring its schools up to the ideal, in almost, if not all respects, colored children and teachers receive far more favorable treatment in Atlanta than elsewhere in the state and than in many comparable southern cities," the report says.

"There should be held in mind by all citizens the continuing aim which the board declares as its policy, of giving to all citizens, regardless of race, color or creed, the best education possible within its financial limitations. In this way, the American democracy may best be sustained and improved."

The proposed $7,800,000 bond issue includes improvements for both Negro and white elementary and high schools and its effects would be felt by the entire local public school system.

Alexander Re-elected By Historical Society

Members of the Atlanta Historical Society have re-elected Henry A. Alexander president, Gordon F. Mitchell vice president, and Stephens Mitchell editor for the coming year.

Elected to five-year terms as curators were Dr. Frank K. Boland, Franklin M. Garrett, Clarence Haverty, Mrs. S. W. McCallie, Miss Ruth Blair and Edward S. West. Members named to the executive committee include John Ashley Jones, Charles P. King, Mrs. John M. Slaton, Mrs. Robert W. Davis, John M. Harrison, Beverly M. DuBose and Edward S. West.

Committee chairmen include John Ashley Jones, membership; Mrs. Dunrwood T. Pye, reception; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mitchell, open houses, and Mrs. Clarence Garrett, clippings.

Institute Postponed By Press Group

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The Georgia Press Institute, scheduled for Feb. 21-24, has been postponed until such time as the holding of the meeting will not be contrary to the best interests of the war effort.

This announcement was made jointly today by R. E. L. Majors, of the Claxton Enterprise, president of the Georgia Press Association; L. L. Patten, of the Lanier County News, Lakeland, chairman of the Press Institute committee, and Dean John E. Drewry, of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, University of Georgia.

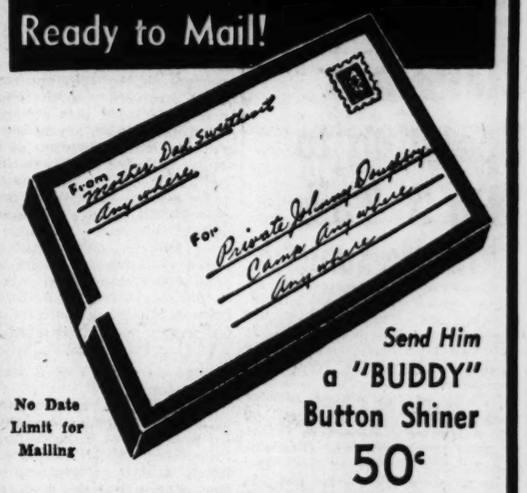

"Officers of the press association and of the university feel that all organizations, and the press in particular, should co-operate with War Mobilizer Brynes and other governmental officials who are asking that conventions and travel be reduced as much as possible," the statement said.

"A very fine program had been worked out. At least two United States senators, several foreign correspondents, and representatives of various governmental agencies were scheduled to address the Georgia editors and the students and faculty of the university.

"We are sure that these speakers and the co-operating newspapers will understand and approve our action. We hope that the day is not far distant when it will be possible and proper to announce new dates for the institute and to bring some or all of the persons to Athens who are now committed to the program."

Poll Tax Repeal Seen In Showdown Debate Today

The showdown on Georgia's poll tax battle comes today, with administration leaders claiming enough pledged votes to repeal the voting tax in the house.

Debate begins this morning on the measure, which last week was approved by the senate, 31 to 19. The house ways and means committee amended the senate bill to retain permanent registration. The amondment drops the biennial registration asked by the senate, but it does purge the registration list if a citizen does not vote within two years. Senate authors reportedly will accept the amendment.

A bill to increase state highway funds in 74 counties—by establishing a new minimum for counties to receieve—was introduced in the house yesterday, with nearly enough authors to assure its passage. Sixty-seven representatives signed the meaur,e and Rep. Cates, of Burke, said he easily could have obtained a total of 125 signatures.

Every county in the state shall be guaranteed that at least 14.13 per cent of its total county mileage shall be on the state aid road system, the authors explained. They said the average amount of state aid roads in a connty is 14.13 per cent, but many counties have more than this average while 74 counties have less than this percentage.

Without reducing the mileage of those favored counties, Cates' bill would add one-half million dollars to the state highway deportment's appropriation to take care of the added expenses of bringing up the less-favored counties to the new minimum.

The house yesterday debated a bill establishing a servicemen's resettlement administration to finance loans for veterans, but delayed action until next Monday At the time of adjournment, the house was debating a hotly contested plan of redistricting senatorial districts so as to add two senators.

"The new method of distribution would be much fairer to all," Rep. Cates, of Burke, author of the bill, said. "All counties will get a better proportionate share. It will not take away state money from any county which already has its budget geared to use certain amounts of money, but it will add money to those counties now being discriminated against. This measure will nearer satisfy all counties, even though it still doesn't give many counties what they are entitled to. If all were treated equally, some of the less fortunate counties would be given an increase of $15,000 over their present allotments."

Among the long list of authors were Speaker Harris, and Reps. Bargeron, Mason, Mitchell, McCracken, Phillips, Smith, of Emanuel; Sills, Battle and Roughton.

Counties which would be benefitted by the measure, the amount of money they now get, and the amount they would get if brought to 14.13 per cent follow:

Bacon county, present, $21,267, proposed, $21,562; Banks county, present, $20,380, proposed, $20,573; Bartow, present, $35,413, proposed, $36,861; Bleckley county, present, $16,779, proposed, $17,-996; Brooks county, present, $34,277, proposed, $38,865; Bulloch county, present, $36,387, proposed, $64,465; Burke county, present, $35,352, proposed, $100,868; Candler county, present, $16,490, proposed, $24,844; Chattooga county, present, $16,-017, proposed, $22,453; Cherokee county, present, 32,157, proposed, $40,216; Cobb county, present, $35,511, proposed, $35,-917; Colquitt county, present, $37,546, proposed, $43,774; Columbia county, present, $24,368, proposed, $24,709; Cook county, present, $14,987, proposed, $18,720; Coweta county, present, $26,709, proposed, $37,690; Crisp county, present, $20,478, proposed, $33,241; Decatur county, present, $29,459, proposed, $43,918; DeKalb county, present, $21,146, proposed, $44,-573; Dooly county, present, $25,842, proposed, $42,342; Douglas county, present, $20,671, proposed, $21,612; Elbert county, present, $27,655, proposed, $33,014; Effingham county, present, $24,045, proposed, $51,077; Emanuel county, present, $32,217, proposed, $60,964; Fannin county, present, $17,857, proposed, $19,885; Floyd county, present, $31,417, proposed, $34,243; Fulton county, present, $57,870, proposed, $77,206; Gilmer county, present, $19,830, proposed, $27,572; Gordon county, present, $22,665, proposed, $26,509; Greene county, present, $25,910, proposed, $29,895; Gwinnett county, present, $42,-935, proposed, $46,250; Hancock county, present, $23,701, proposed, 31,047; Haralson county, present, $24,383, proposed, $29,520; Hart county, present, $25,262, proposed, $28,669; Heard county, present, $21,237, proposed, $26,617; Henry county, present, $26,933, proposed, $32,246; Irwin county, present, $20,555, proposed, $22,583; Jeff Davis county, present, $18,210, proposed, $25,071; Jefferson county, present, $45,325, proposed, $57,867; Jenkins county, present, $22,263, proposed, $22,524; Lamar county, present, $15,531, proposed, $17,-190; Laurens county, present, $51,449, proposed, $64,652; Lee county, present, $23,-046, proposed, $26,868; McDuffie county, present, $18,004, proposed, $23,947; Madison county, present, $28,657, proposed, $29,914; Marion county, present, $21,925, proposed, $23,332; Miller county, present, $13,943, proposed, $17,267; Montgomery county, present, $22,973, proposed, $23,-179; Morgan county, present, $19,553, proposed, $30,387; Murray county, present, $19,329, proposed, $20,075; Oglethorpe county, present, $24,395, proposed, $28,-556; Paulding county, present, $31,533, proposed, $32,301; Pike county, present, $14,812, proposed, $18,398; Putnam county, present, $22,226, proposed, $26,248; Randolph county, present, $19,187, proposed, $21,738; Richmond county, present, $25,541, proposed, $38,043; Wilkes county, present, $25,262, proposed, $25,-609; Wilkinson county, present, $24,819, proposed, $27,443; Worth county, present, $36,249, proposed, 42,265.

TED V. RODGERS
Trucking Expert

Georgia Called Leader in South In Truck Hauling

Although Georgia is considered a leader in highway freight in the south, a question mark has been placed beside her and her neighboring states' outlook for the summer of 1945. The coming hot season is the first when trucks have used synthetic tires. Their loads are heavy—which is contrary to synthetic tire use qualifications. Their speed must be maintained (35 m. p. h.) to meet schedules—also a "don't" in the synthetic tire realm.

This is the picture painted yesteerday by Ted V. Rodgers, president American Trucking Association, who is here to address the Motor Vehicle Association of Georgia in conferences today.

Government agencies have done a "swell job" in keeping truck haulers of essential items on the roads, Rodgers said. During the past 12 months, an almost negligible increase in the number of idle trucks has been noticed—trucks idle because of insufficient rubber or gasoline.

Motor vehicles have taken a definite place in the annals of war as America moved her trucks abroad to fight a completely mechanized battle, Rodgers said.

"But despite the wartime limitations on highway shipping, Georgia has moved ahead to be termed a leader in the south as she has passed legislation permitting operation of larger and heavier trucks on state highways."

Rodgers explained the progress of Georgia truck freight by pointing out that motor vehicles operating in the state carry almost twice the load of pecans or eggs, for example, as they can transport in Tennessee, to cite one southern state with smaller truck size allowances. In Georgia a combination vehicle may not exceed 45 feet in length, while Tennessee's maximum is 35 feet.

He saluted the "law makers and administrators of Georgia" for their foresight in recognizing the economic value of highway transportation by revising laws governing the size and weight of trucks operated here.

Eat, Mo Well Along Toward Lion's Den

The fate of Eat and Mo, the pony and mule which have been literally eating the city of Atlanta out of house and home, appears to be sealed.

And as a result, the lions, the tigers and the other carnivorous animals out at the Grant Park zoo are licking their chops in fond expectation.

Eat and Mo, who have waxed fat since they were found wandering around on the streets some 45 days ago and taken to the stables at Grant Park, westerday were claimed by Tom Jones, a Negro, who told how they broke down a fence and got away.

Tom was all set to take them away and save them from the butcher, who was going to make them into steaks for the wild animals, but changed his mind when Johnny Dilbeck, manager of the zoo, presented a bill for $90 for boarding the animals.

'Then ain't worth it," Tom said. "Just feed 'em to the lions."

Senate To Get Bill Abolishing Governor's Veto

At a meeting of the senate constitution committee today, Sen. H. Dixon Smith, of Columbus, will offer an amendment to the proposed new constitution to abolish the power of the governor to veto any legislation.

The governor now has the authority to veto any legislative measure except a constitutional amendment.

Smith, a member of the committee, announced at yesterday's committee meeting that he would submit the amendment for the group's consideration, saying "I think it makes a more independent legislature and I think that's what we need."

In session yesterday, the senate committee struck a provision in the new constitution calling for the state superintendent of schools to be elected by the State Board of Education and approved an amendment providing that the superintendent shall be elected by the people as is now the case.

The committee retained a provision leaving the method of the county school superintendent's election to be determined by the people of the county. Present law requires the superintendent to be elected by the people.

Voting to strike out a paragraph in the proposed document giving the general assembly authority to exempt from tax any property to the value of $1,600, the committee approved the provision of the present constitution exempting homestead property from school or other taxes.

The body approved an amendment providing that any county may be dissolved and merged with adjoining county or counties by a majority of the qualified voters of each of the counties affected.

On the petition of one-fourth of the registered voters of each of the counties to be affected, the authorities of all counties concerned might call an election for the purpose of deciding the question of consolidation or merger.

State Regulation Of Aircraft Is Sought In Senate

Intrastate aviation would be regulated by the Georgia Public Service Commission under a measure which has been introduced in the Georgia senate.

Submitted yesterday by Sen. Spence Grayson, of Savannah, the bill gives the commission, of which Walter McDonald is chairman, "jurisdiction and regulatory powers" over common aircraft carriers.

At present there is no state regulatory body for air transportation.

Meanwhile, the Medical Association of Georgia yesterday expressed confidence in the state board of health, and declared it would be an error to transfer Alto from the health department to the welfare department, as proposed by Rep. Greer, of Lanier. The Georgia Society of Professional Engineers' legislative committee expressed pleasure in the appointment of a general manager of Alto with engineering training. (Speaker Harris had asked dismissal of Manager Richard Job). Similar action was taken by a committee of the Georgia section of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Sen. Homer L. Causey, of Alma, offered a measure to authorize the "operation of moving picture shows within certain hours of the Sabbath"—these hours being from 2 p. m. to 11:30 p. m.

It provides that if 10 per cent of the registered voters of a community object by petition to Sunday movies, the matter will be settled by a special election within 30 days of the objection notice.

Theaters operating on Sunday in Georgia now are required to turn over their proceeds, other than expenses, to charitable causes.

A proposal was tendered to authorize the State Game and Fish Commission to purchase, through the State Purchasing Department, an airplane for use in patrolling coastal waters of the state and commercial fisheries "so as to better enforce the laws. . . ."

The senate tabled, for revision, a measure to creat a "Georgia Bar," which would have the authority to govern the professional conduct of those admitted to the bar. This legislation, in its original form, would prohibit persons not members of the organization from practicing law or maintaining law offices in Georgia.

A resolution adopted by the senate and sent to the house provides for a committee of three senators and five representatives to investigate conditions at Alto, state tuberculosis sanatorium. Appointed by Pres. Frank Gross to represent the senate were Dr. W. H. Bennett, of Sylvania; E. H. Brown, of Nashville, and W. L. Norton, of Gainesville.

Legislation making it unlawful to purchase mausoleum or cemetery space with the view of selling it for profit was passed by the senate and sent to the house. The bill was authored by Sen. A. M. Greene, of Gray.

A house bill was passed by the senate and sent to Gov. Arnall for his signature, to provide that any real estate "owned or acquired by the state of Georgia may be improved with funds appropriated for a state department provided the head of the department affected and the budget bureau, consisting of the Governor and the state auditor, consent."

Hoke Smith Foundation Dedicated

The Hoke Smith Memorial Foundation and a bronze likeness of the late Georgia senator were dedicated yesterday at a ceremony at the state capitol.

The bronze plaque, made by Steffan Thomas, was unveiled by Sen. Smith's great-grandson, six-year-old Spencer Rawson Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Allen Jr. The presentation was made by F. M. Bird, chairman of the Hoke Smith Memorial Commission and former secretary to the senator. Gov. Arnall accepted the plaque and the educational foundation on behalf of the state and the people of Georgia.

The plaque was installed on the first floor of the capitol building on the spot formerly occupied by a plaque dedicated to Gov. E. D. Rivers which was removed during the administration of Gov. Eugene Talmadge. A likeness of Smith as governor of Georgia is framed by allegorical panels which show important points in his career. The plaque is inscribed "Hoke Smith, Lawyer, Publisher, Secretary of the Interior, Governor, Senator."

The Hoke Smith Memorial Foundation is a perpetual trust fund for the education of Georgians in the fields of agricultural extension and vocational training. Trustees for the fund will be the board of regents of the University System of Georgia, chairman of which is Sen. Smith's son, Marion Smith.

Contest on Solons Depends on Repeal

RO'NOKE, Va., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Action instituted by Moss A. Plunkett, Roanoke attorney and president of the Southern Electoral Reform League, contesting seats of Georgia members of the house of representatives elected last November 7, will be immediately withdrawn if the Georgia legislature repeals the states' poll tax law, Plunkett said today.

Efforts to unseat congressmen from Virginia, Alabama, South Carolina, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, the seven other southern states with poll taxes will continue, however, Plunkett said.

Virtue Its Own—And Only—Reward?

Following the house's action of last Friday, the senate this week unanimously passed a resolution deploring the fact that no southerner is in the cabinet and urging President Roosevelt to give due consideration to qualified southern statesmen.

The resolution, introduced by Sen. Guy Stone, of Glenwood, was similar to the house document by Reps. Williams, of Toombs, and Smith, of Bryan, which was printed here on Saturday.

Meanwhile, there have been other manifestations of interest in The Constitution's original editorial lamenting the fact that, after giving Roosevelt its total electoral vote for four consecutive terms, the south now finds itself in the unprecedented position of having no representation in the cabinet of a Democratic president. Not a few are the newspapers, throughout Georgia and the south, which have reprinted or commented upon the editorial and the consequent legislative resolution.

"For the first time in history—except after Reconstruction—there is no southern man in the cabinet," comments venerable Josephus Daniels' Raleigh News and Observer, adding the little-realized fact that New York alone has half the members of the current cabinet.

"The resolution adopted by the Georgia house of representatives Jan. 27 declaring that the south is no longer represented in the cabinet; that 'there are many capable southerners' who would do well in the national cabinet and requesting the President to give 'serious consideration to this situation when next considering the appointment of a cabinet officer' provides a pertinent commentary on the south as a Democratic territory," declares the Savannah Morning News, adding: "The Georgia house's resolution was a fine gesture from a standpoint of sectional pride; but we fear that from a political standpoint it was like an old-time Democrat, with his head just sticking out of a huge bag, tightly tied, crying in the wilderness!"

These sentiments are reiterated by the Augusta Chronicle which, in an editorial, "The South: Semper Fidelis," says:

"The truth of the matter is that politics is such a ruthless sort of business that loyalty is usually rewarded only when there is a chance that those who are faithful today might be unfaithful tomorrow. In politics, people and groups and sections which are 'in the bag,' and can be counted on to remain there, seldom, if ever, get any serious consideration from those in authority who dispense appointments and other rewards for fidelity and work well done. Until the south becomes a doubtful section, puts itself in a position where it can switch its affections from one party to the other, we can continue to expect to be treated as a stepchild and denied the representation to which we are entitled in the highest councils of the land."

It is interesting, in this connection, to note that the south's cabinet representation has become progressively smaller since 1932—when the newly elected Roosevelt named Hull, of Tennessee; Swanson, of Virginia; and Roper, of South Carolina—until today we have no southerners in the cabinet and no prospects of getting same.

Certainly there are men in the great 13-state area which comprises the solid south who are fully capable of competently discharging the duties of a cabinet officer.

And surely we are fully justified in wondering at the circumstance which has resulted in their not being named.

Setting Good Example

The Georgia Press Association, because of the congestion of wartime travel, has decided to postpone its annual press institute indefinitely. Other organizations have taken similar action, the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and the Baptist Convention outstanding as examples.

Travel by train or by bus is needed, in high ratio, by members of the armed forces and their families. Others, who do not have to travel, can best demonstrate their patriotic co-operation by not taking space which is needed for urgent transportation by those directly engaged in fighting the war.

The Office of Defense Transportation has forbidden, after February 1, all conventions of more than 50 delegates, except those which have a direct war purpose. For such gatherings of direct war importance, special permits will, if desirable, be issued on application.

Unfortunately, if reports are true, the great majority of organizations accustomed to holding annual conventions, are already applying for special permits for 1945. They are making the plea of war work the excuse for these applications. In a few cases this may be well founded. But in the vast majority the holding of a convention would not advance said war work one iota or bring victory nearer by so much as a minute.

This is not intended to detract from the value of service rendered for the war by the various organizations. It merely questions the value of a convention, when "war work" is used merely as an excuse for the gathering.

The tragedies which are of daily occurrence because of the shortage of travel accommodations should be sufficient reason to keep everyone at home unless the reason for travel is so compelling it cannot be denied.

The three groups mentioned above have set good example in this respect. It is to be hoped that others which have not, as yet, demonstrated equal patriotic spirit, in this regard, will either abstain from asking convention permit or, if application is already in, withdraw it.

Liked Editorial

Editor, Constitution: Please allow me to commend your editorial, "The Unrepresented South." It was fine in every way and the sentiments expressed should make the south wake up and quit being a "stepchild of the nation." To be respected, we need a two-party system. Keep writing editorials until this is obtained.

In Defense of Arnall

Editor, Constitution: It was with shocked surprise I read last Thursday morning your editorial lecture to our Governor for daring to express his approval of the President's appointment of Henry Wallace. It is not difficult to imagine how quickly, and justifiably, you would protest against any form of censorship. Of course, you are justified in criticizing any opinion which the Governor may express, but scarcely justified in criticizing him for expressing an opinion. Surely you do not want a "dumb" Governor.

Of course, the Governor can never in a literal sense speak for all the people of the state, but he is by his election not only privileged, but obligated, to represent what he conceives to be the highest interests of the state. And to my mind, never did he do that more superbly than when he came out frankly and courageously in support of Henry Wallace.

The Stolid South

Editor, Constitution: Permit me to congratulate you upon the rare courage and sound logic of your leading editorial of today (Tuesday), entitled "The Unrepresented South," wherein you point out that the south receives no "political plums" because of its "solid (stolid) status" in blindly supporting all men or measures bearing the democratic label; and, while this is undoubtedly true, you might also have shown that the several states of the south would derive even greater advantage in the administration of purely state affairs by breaking away from the one-party system fetish to which the south has clung with fanatical tenacity since reconstruction days.

Wallace and George

Editor, Constitution: Mr. Wallace is astute enough to know his limitations in any direction and it may be assumed that he will surround himself in the Commerce Department with men capable as Mr. Jones in handling the lending and disbursing of the billions to be distributed—and see to it that it doesn't all go into the hands of the already gorged coffers of the elect.

I believe you will learn by consulting the man, out of politics and finance, who works for an honest living, that Mr. Arnall is far ahead of our Sen. George in the public estimation at this time.

Jesse Jones says Mr. Wallace will ruin the country in handling this fund. Mr. Jones' conception of "the country" starts and ends with the strata inclusive of the vested gentry.

Mr. Wallace believes the whole citizenship constitutes the country—and he wants to give them all a crack at enjoying its benefits.

Two-Party System

Editor Constitution: I do not know which one of you gentlemen wrote the editorial in yesterday's Constitution on "The Unrepresented South," and I want to congratulate you on same as it shows more of the spirit of the Hon. Clark Howell, who passed away a few years ago, and the sooner the south forms a two-party system the better and more justice will be given in every way and let the good work continue.

It was only through the south that Roosevelt was re-elected. What has he given us?

Unworthy

Editor Constitution: Your composition of Thursday morning, "George's Proposal a Logical One," is a type of expression that does not appear often in your editorial columns—just once in so often—and when such an editorial does appear it seems unworthy of The Constitution. One just wonders about a lapse into captious and ridiculous statements. It sounds as though a personal irritation derailed judgment.

How could any sensible person read into Gov. Arnall's message to Sen. George the interpretation that your editorial claims? There was no indication that the Governor assumed that he was speaking for the people of Georgia, and to intimate that he had in mind peculiar profit to Georgia above other states if Wallace were secretary of commerce (including the lending agencies) is sheer nonsense.

As for the conflict over the confirmation of Henry Wallace, no thinking person can fail to see this as a battle in a struggle in this country which is not to be dismissed with a wave of the hand.

We Must Think Clearly---But Quickly

(Editor's Note: Ralph McGill is en route around the world as a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' mission in behalf of universal news freedom. His column will appear as time and communication facilities allow. When it is not available, substitute features will be used, as today's by Dorothy Thompson.)

In this very late hour—much later than anyone would think from reading the military comentators on the European war—it is time to think, and to think in the clearest, most tough-minded way: for if we don't, we are going to be greatly surprised.

The German war is going to be over—in any minute to some weeks. The military situation on the eastern front indicates it. Even if the German administration still were intact, and had the loyal following of army, leaders, and people, the German military case would be hopeless. There are no reserves; manpower is exhausted; and with the capture by the Russians of Polish and German Upper Silesia, essential material resources have vanished. Without these it would be impossible to continue long to defend even the best prepared fortifications. And no such fortifications are in the path of the advancing Soviet armies.

But the administration is not intact, and the civilian rear is in a complete state of demoralization. The communication system has ceased to function. The movement of troops eastward has become almost impossible because the railroads are blocked by refugees. There are reports that the rationing system has broken down over large areas.

Before the refugees began streaming from the east, there were some 13,000,000 people who had been bombed out. The stream cannot be checked, because the Nazi propaganda for two years has continually warned the people that every German caught up by the Russian armies will either be killed or deported to Siberia. There are reports of clashes between Volksturm and SS troops. There are desertions from Nazi ranks, and even from the SS.

The German press makes no bones about it: panic is sweeping from east to west; and the next eight days will be decisive. There is no such thing as a defeated army that can go on fighting in such a condition of national demoralization. When a totalitarian state cracks, it is the gotterdammerung—and that is the present Wagnerian scene.

The Answer? And after this—what?

The German situation will not be one that can be handled according to normal procedures. We must imagine that perhaps a third of the population within the pre-Hitler German borders will be living in improvised camps. To the already bombed out will be added the refugees from the east and deserting soldiers with no homes to go to or no possibility of reaching them. A figure of 20,000,000 is conservative.

This refugee population is mixed up from all parts of Germany with all its normal connections lost. Means of identification are destroyed under such conditions. In this inchoate mass, anyone, including the most fanatical Nazis, can disappear. To organize a government, in such a situation, by liberal or parliamentary means is impossible. And, in such a mess, to create any sort of civilian order by an A. M. G. or a military occupation alone will be hopeless. There must be authority, police, and organization. There must be persons who know Germany, and know where the sources of authority can be organized. There must be a carefully prepared program.

It exists. But it is not an inter-Allied program. It is Soviet.

Russians Know The Russians know what they want. They have not waited until the war was over to prepare methodically for it. They have an authority for Germany, and a police. Two hundred thousand prisoners of war have been indoctrinated and trained, together with officers. In the free German committee, but especially in the union of German officers, they have men whose names are known to every German.

Gen. von Seydlitz, the chief brain-truster of the committee, bears a name honored in German military history since the days of Frederick the Great. His ancestor, another Gen. von Seydlitz, was the man who won Upper Silesia for Prussia from the Austro-Hungarian empire. Gen. von Seydlitz is convinced that the future of Germany lies in hand-in-glove co-operation with the Soviet Union, and intends to carry out that policy.

The Moscow agreement made and signed by Messrs. Hull, Molotov and Eden in October, 1943, contains this passage:

"After the termination of hostilities they will not employ their military forces within the territories of other states, except for the purposes envisaged in this declaration and after joint consultation."

This was, and can only be interpreted to mean—in the framework of the rest of the text—that the occupation should be a common task for common purposes and be commonly ended. But there is nothing in the agreement which concerns the German successors. If one power establishes in its region a real authority and possible successor, and the others fail to do so, who will take over all of Germany when the occupation ends? And, for that matter, on whom will all the occupying authorities have to depend to overcome chaos?

Occupied Holland Sends Some Stories

Some little stories, humorous and tragic, have recently come out of occupied Holland. They reach this desk through the mediary of the Netherlands Information Bureau.

First for a sample of the humor:

There has been, you may have read, a railroad strike on in Holland since about the middle of last September. It is one means the citizens have adopted in their quiet warfare against the Nazis who have seized their country. The entire German transportation system in that corner of Europe has been disrupted.

Nazi authorities have attempted to halt the strike, both by the use of force and by threats to the population. Without success. Recently the Nazis put up posters in all cities in villages, reading:

"Railway strike means: No coal, no gas, no electricity, no food."

One morning additional words had been added to the posters. They were: "No German victory."

Nazi Wrath Again Here's a story of another kind. Tragedy. Early in October two German officers were passing through a Dutch village called Putten. They were shot from ambush and killed.

The German military commander of Holland's occupied area, Air Gen. Friedrich Christiansen, sent a detachment of soldiers with instructions to punish the village of Putten.

Arriving early on Sunday morning, the punishment troops immediately gave orders that the entire village must remain indoors. A few who dared to leave their homes were shot.

On the following morning all men between 16 and 50 were herded into the market square. The square was then surrounded by machinegun patrols. An officer read an order from Gen. Christiansen demanding the execution of 40 men. The population was forced to look on as this order was carried out.

Surviving men of the village, 700, were taken to a defense line to work on defense construction.. Then the remainder of the people, the women and children and the old men, were ordered to leave town. A day later they received permission to return.

They found their village of Putten wrecked with more than 100 houses dynamited and utilities ruined.

Nice people, these Nazis, aren't they?

Also the Underground There have been those, either unthinking or wrong-thinking folks, who have loosed several severe sneers at the underground forces of liberation in several European countries lately.

One story from Holland reveals a phase of underground activity we hear of too rarely.

We all know that the mere problems of finding sufficient food and warmth to maintain life are tremendous in many of the occupied countries.

In Holland, it is now reported, the underground itself provided the means to support the families of its members. In a country where food costs for one day equaled those for a month in the happy prewar days, it called for plenty to do this. It must also be remembered that while the Germans occupy a country, the moral side of the black market is exactly the reverse to what it is in our own country.

Here it is betrayal of the nation to patronize the black market. There it is but sabotage of rules imposed by the enemy.

Anyway, the Dutch underground collected and distributed a million guilders (about $540,000) each month of 1944 for the support of their fellow members' families.

For the future, the underground pledges, it will take care of the families of former members who died as victims of the Nazi terror

Furthermore, the underground promises help, in the form of maintenance and educational opportunities, for the thousands of young boys who contributed much to the success of the movement.

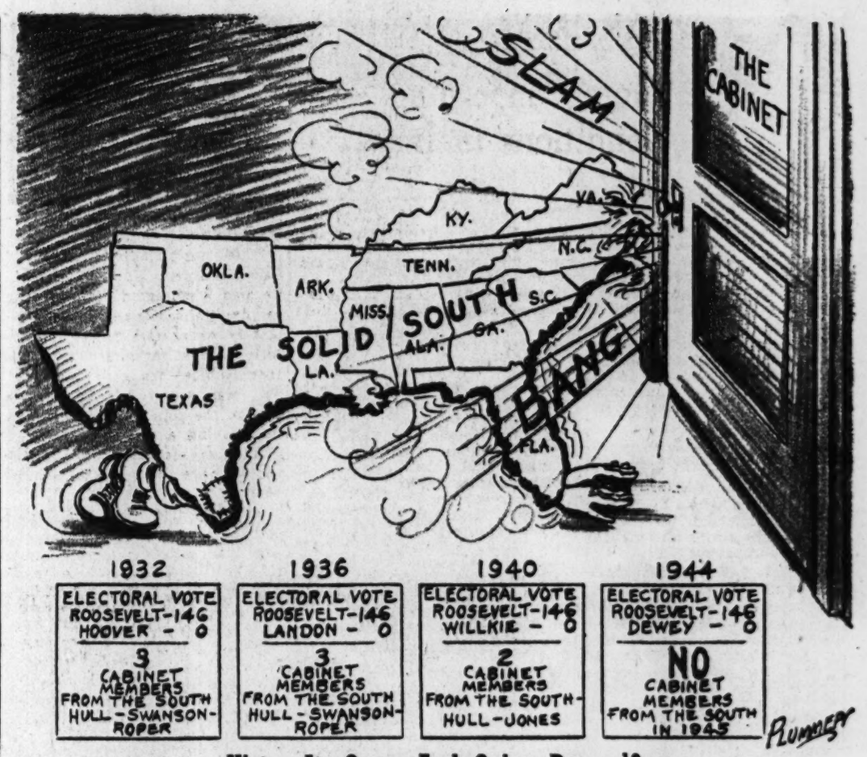

These are the youngsters of high school and college freshman age, who acted as messengers for the underground, who delivered clandestine newspapers and took part in many raids necessary to provide ration books and identification cards for the underground.

Rather Insulting I have been reading, of late, arguments pro and con on the necessity of maintenance, in the future, of armed forces by the United States, strong enough to make this country utterly safe from attack.

And several of the opponents have offered in argument what appears to me to be a direct insult to the American nation and its democratic citizens.

They say, forsooth, that a large standing Army and powerful Navies in the service of the United States will tend to make this nation an aggressor and a war-making nation!

That, it seems to me, is an insult to everything and to every ideal we proudly include under the classification "American."

Virtue Its Own—And Only—Reward?

One Problem After Another

Problems, like wild onions, multiply by a natural process if let alone.

The manpower problem is typical.

In certain localities you will find "guest" drivers riding on trucks, doing nothing but drawing pay.

In certain plants you will find three men assigned to a job that one could do better if the others would keep out of his way.

In certain vital war plants you will find workers deliberately limiting their output—producing about half as much as they would produce in shops of their own.

They aren't doing these things because they enjoy loafing, or to spite the boss, or to benefit Hitler, but in obedience to union rules.

Their defense, provided by labor leaders, is something like this: "If we double our output now, the boss will expect us to keep on doing it. When demand gets back to normal, one man will be doing the work formerly done by two and half of us will lose our jobs."

The original problem was to satisfy these trained workers, already on the job, and somehow persuade them to do their best. If each man had been willing to double his output, he would have been equal to two men. If he had been willing to work overtime—to put in as many hours as all men did a generation ago—he would have been equal to three. And that would have solved the manpower problem in that kind of factory.

Because the original problem wasn't solved, Washington officials tell us they now face the problem of finding 700,000 more workers in the next six months.

There was another problem connected with horse racing. Millions of people who might have been doing some kind of war work were attending the races, and over a billion dollars that might have been invested in war bonds was wagered on the results.

This problem was solved by burning the barn to get rid of the rats. Mr. Byrnes closed the racetracks. But if the government had enforced the rationing of gasoline and stopped bootlegging, the race tracks could have done no harm.

For want of the ability or courage to solve original problems, we have created greater ones—and we are still doing it.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

HOPE MR. DURDEN IS CORRECT

(Albany Herald)

Rep. Adie N. Durden, veteran Dougherty county solon who is floor leader of the Georgia house of representatives, predicted last week end that the lower chamber of the general assembly would pass the senate-approved bill repealing the $1-a-year poll tax.

We sincerely hope the local legislator's prognostication will be borne out.

Arguments to the effect that abolition of the poll tax would cause our schools to suffer—since money thus raised is placed in the educational fund—leave us cold. In the first place, money derived from the tax is but a very small part of the total outlay appropriated for educating our children. And in the second place, if the schools need more money, the general assembly is certainly empowered to find other means of providing it.

As for charges made recently by some members of the legislature to the effect that the bill originated in "Harlem, N. Y.," these are too ridiculous on their face to deny.

Suffice it to say that the poll tax and "white supremacy" are in no way related.

Georgia's young governor, Ellis Gibbs Arnall, sounded a courageous call in asking for repeal of the tax in an historic address to the assembly last week. The senate responded by passing, by a gratifyingly large majority, the measure sponsored by its president, Frank Gross. The legislation's fate now rests on the hands of the house.

And members of this body should bear in mind that if they kill the bill, there is bound to be passed by the United States congress sooner or later, legislation removing the poll tax as a qualification for voting in all elections for President and members of congress. Georgia should beat congress to the punch.

JACK TARVER

A Great Talent Going To Be Wasted?

With great and growing interest I have been following developments in the case of the 58-year-old street car conductor who has married, at last reports, 12 women with outlying areas still to be heard from.

This car-barn Casanova—self-styled "The Ding-dong Daddy of the D Line"—absentmindedly overlooked the conventionality of divorce at several stops along his run with the result that he is currently being held for bigamy with a capital BIG.

"I'm just a man who wanted a home and peace and quiet," explained the multimarried citizen, attributing his dozen-lot marriages to a futile search for "contentment" . . . Just a one-track mind on the trolley of life.

Seriously, I am intrigued by the fact that the vast majority of the ladies whom the gentleman has loved and left along the line show no disposition to prosecute him, that—in no few instances—they are apparently genuinely happy to hear from him again and considerably perturbed that the law has delayed, at least temporarily, his schedule.

I do not marvel at the gentleman's matrimonial marathon. Anyone with as much endurance and opportunity for making new acquaintances might amass as high a total. Manville is doing almost as well and he has always gone to the time and trouble to observe the formalities.

But it does seem to me that it would be a veritable shame for the authorities to file the gent in question away in durance vile at a time when this nation stands in such need of his talents. Indeed, I don't see why they don't give him a lifetime contract and set him up in Washington as the head of the State Department.

International politics would be child's play to a man with his diplomatic qualifications.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Wallace Opposition Risking Party Split

WASHINGTON.—Wittingly or unwittingly, senate Democrats who are opposing the nomination of former Vice President Henry Wallace as secretary of commerce may be laying the groundwork for party disaster four years hence.

It is one thing to strip the Commerce Department of jurisdiction over giant lending agencies of the government, as proposed in the bill by Sen. Walter F. George, but it is quite another to oppose the Wallace nomination outright.

The consensus of congressional opinion, including many of Mr. Wallace's own friends, is that it is entirely proper to divorce the lending agencies from the Department of Commerce. Most persons seem to feel that authority over the agencies should never have been placed in the department in the beginning.

Their functions are undoubtedly of sufficient magnitude to command the full attention of an outside administrator. Mr. Wallace himself is not insisting that they be retained under the department. He would prefer to have them left there, as they were under the secretaryship of Jesse Jones, but he is not making that a condition of his acceptance of the cabinet appointment.

Some of the more conservative elements of the senate are out to block the Wallace nomination, regardless of the outcome of the fight over the George bill. They don't like his brand of liberalism. Even though the department is separated from all authority over the lending agencies, they still would like to see the former vice president defeated. They just don't like Wallace and some of the things he stands for. Hence they will vote against his confirmation.

To Dramatize Position If the Iowa man is rejected, he will owe his defeat to a defection of conservative Democrats. That would cause him to emerge as the undisputed leader of the liberal forces of the country. Nothing could be better designed to dramatize Mr. Wallace's liberal position than that. He made great strides in this direction by the fight he made for renomination at the Chicago convention.

Although he lost that fight, he came out of the convention a more potent factor as a leader of liberal forces than he was before. If he should be defeated now for the cabinet by conservative Democrats, acting in collaboration with political-minded Republicans, the emphasis on his liberal leadership would be even greater.

Some of Mr. Wallace's friends are secretly hoping for his defeat. They profess to believe that it would make certain his nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1948, when Mr. Roosevelt is expected to retire.

That may or may not be true. It is not easy to measure the political consequences of his possible defeat in relation to the presidential nomination.

From the standpoint of conservative Democrats nothing could be more disastrous than that. Mr. Wallace's brand of liberalism is far more of an anathema to them than Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal.

But the real threat of disaster to the Democratic party in the situation seems to lie in a different direction.

Third Party Mr. Wallace stands out today as the only political figure who is capable of leading a third-party movement. His close affiliation with the CIO and other elements of organized labor places him in a position to lead these forces in a third-party enterprise. With President Roosevelt out of the running, he would command support from these forces more than any other person now occupying the political stage.

Reasonable estimates are that these forces contributed a minimum of 3,500,000 votes to the Roosevelt-Truman total in the past election, or just about the size of the Democratic majority.

Now, suppose Mr. Wallace is defeated for the cabinet appointment and later fails to get the Democratic presidential nomination? Can anyone assume that he would not seize on the opportunity to lead a third-party movement of liberals in 1948 by way of evening the score with conservative Democrats who thrice had frustrated his plans?

He would be certain to do just that, most observers believe. To do anything less would not be human. Having started out as a Republican, Mr. Wallace has no traditional party ties that hold him as a Democrat.

For conservative senate Democrats to defeat the Wallace nomination, irrespective of what action may be taken on the George bill, is to issue an invitation for party disaster. By launching a third-party program he could easily take enough votes away from the Democrats to wreck any chances of the party to win four years hence. The issue he could raise would be not unlike that between Roosevelt and Hoover 12 years ago.

EVELYN HANNA

More Concerning Conditions in India

THOMASTON.—"All India is no more alike than all Gaul or all America, you know," began Dr. Girardeau. "The country is divided into British provinces and over 500 native states, and, as Caesar used to say, they differ widely among themselves; besides, they are all intermingled, provinces adjoin native states like the pieces of a patchwork quilt. But there's an equal variance in north and south India. In the southern part near the coast even the coolies speak English, men and women appear together on the streets, the women without their veils.

"But in the northern part, women are still kept in purdah, native costumes prevail exclusively and they have not been influenced to any perceptible degree by European thought.

"Since the United provinces is in the center, we came in contact with both types. I can truthfully say, Evelyn, that there was very little anti-British feeling in our province, though there is, of course, a very strong nationalistic sentiment throughout India."

"How great is Ghandi's influence there now?" I interrupted.

Dr. Girardeau hesitated a moment, then spoke slowly, "I believe he has lost some prestige since his latest fast. If he had died then, he would have been a martyr and his influence unlimited. The fact that he didn't die sort of . . ."

"Caused his stock to drop?"

"Well, yes."

"But wasn't he given food intravenously by the British doctors to keep him alive?"

"The British doctors did not have access to him. He was attended by Indian physicians—and it is generally conceded that they did give him food by injections when he was unconscious." Dr. Girardeau broke off impatiently, "He is such a contradictory person! He loathes everything British, insists that they have brought nothing good to India, yet he rides on the train and uses the telephone and telegraph. He would, if he could, do away with the government schools; he doesn't believe in education for girls at all; he favors destruction of all the industries built up by the British, the cotton mills, jute mills, every sort of factory, and instead, he advocates a return to the simple hand-run spinning wheel in every cottage. He is an iconoclast of the worst kind—"

"So, actually, he is much more dangerous than a mere quack, or a demagog," I suggested.

"Very much so. He is a crafty politician who (some persons think) uses his enormous power over the Hindus for his own advancement, but they can't see that. He is incapable of thinking straight, of following an idea to its true conclusion. His motto of 'Passive Resistance' is misleading; he has incited terrible revolts that were accompanied by indescribable atrocities.

"As a Hindu he worships the sacred cow, believes that rats (those infamous carriers of disease) should not be destroyed, and he resists bitterly any efforts to abolish child marriage and the purdah system—you would have to know thoroughly the obscene rituals and cruelties of the Hindu religion to realize what an evil thing it is—"

"But Ivylyn, if he were to die, would the Hindus have a better leader?"

"I doubt it; you see, Nehru, his right hand man, was educated in Russia and is a thorough Communist. Don't underestimate Russian designs on India—in a political sense, not necessarily a military one. China is a good example of what to expect in India within a few years."

"After the Mahatma's next fast?"

"Those fasts, if not too protracted, are good for him. He has high blood pressure," Dr. Girardeau said tartly.

"Now about the Calcutta famine—who was to blame for that?"

"The people in Calcutta are still starving. When the famine was at its worst, there was plenty of grain, but the natives had bought it up and were hoarding it. Britain was decidely not responsible for the famines. Calcutta is such a filthy place, and there is so much disease — quite different from Bombay which is surprisingly clean."

"Which diseases are most prevalent, Ivylyn? Plague, cholera?"

"In the 12 years that I have spent in India, I have never had a case of plague, or seen a cholera case. There have been epidemics, but the military officials came in and cleaned them up quickly, and they occurred during the rainy season when I had gone to the hills. There is very little typhoid, since milk is boiled all over India. But there is a great deal of malaria, anaemia and tuberculosis, especially among the women who are kept in seclusion according to the purdah system. The British government has established sanatoria for them throughout the country, although there is not one in Jhansi."

The questions continued to arise, and Dr. Girardeau answered them patiently. It began to look as though the session would last far into the night. "How did the war effect your supplies? Were they flown in from America?"

"No, the greater part of our supplies came from Britain, and though the prices were terrific, and we had to order continuously, we got them. We were able to get sulfa drugs and the government supplies us with quinine, atabrine, and even plasmoquine. Of course we needed more quinine than we could get—I had to give it in very small doses, much smaller than the minimum recommended to us when we were students at Tulane.

"The British government has worked along with us. I can't say enough in praise of them. They kept the door open for missions in India when it was closed in China (except for unoccupied areas), Japan, Korea, Manchuria. If the British should close that door, our hospital which is partially supported, as you know, by the mission boards back home, would have to be turned over to the government.

"Actually, the hospital is about 50 per cent self-supporting. The patients who are able to pay, do so. The poor pay at the rate of about 15 cents a day. Many of the Indian men who are holding war jobs now send home money to their wives for their confinements."

There were still a few questions on the 'must' list. "Ivylyn, you must have had a long hard fight against religious and inherited prejudices. Do you notice any difference between the present attitude and the one current when you first went there?"

"A great deal of difference; the prejudices have broken down perceptibly. Any woman who has once had a baby in our hospital always wants to come back to have her others. And we not only give them medical care, you know, but evangelistic teaching as well. There has been a large ingathering of converts recently; the war may be responsible for that. Our evangelists frequently receive invitations now to go into their homes. I hate to think what may happen to our work after the war—"

"If India is granted her independence?"

"Yes. The people are incapable of self-government. There is going to be a great deal of internal strife—there always was until the British took control, and the pot is boiling again—"

"Strife between Moslems and Hindus?"

"That's only part of it."

"Ivylyn, I've always had an idea that the Moslems were of a bit higher type, better citizens than the Hindus. Is that true?"

"I believe so. And that theory is brought out by Patricia Kendall in her book, 'Come with me to India.' I have it here—would you like to read it?"

"Yes indeed. And if you don't hear from me for several years, you'll know what has happened."

Dr. Girardeau smiled. "It is the most fascinating country in the world—and potentially one of the most powerful or most dangerous."

Fala Married?

Our text for today is the first paragraph of a dispatch from Washington, according to the Herald-Tribune:

"The matrimonial status of Fala, President Roosevelt's Scottie, had Washington baffled today as the White House guarded diligently as a state secret all details of his romantic life, even though Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was reported as saying he was in the country and 'we hope he's having a wedding.'"

Here, my dearly beloved brethren we have two common misconceptions.

The union of two dogs, male and female, is not a wedding and they cannot occupy matrimonial status, although it must be admitted that a tendency among human beings, particularly in the United States, justifies confusion on this point.

Dogs, horses, cattle, sheep and other animals are mated, not married, and their status in such case is not matrimonial but temporary, if not entirely casual. When a pair of dogs are so mated they are not correctly said to have had a wedding but to have bred, and, although in the relations of human beings as well as those of animals, there is a common purpose to reproduce the species, an important difference exists, in that human beings are supposed to assume certain permanent obligations. In the case of Fala, a dog, no responsibility rests upon the male. He simply goes his way and may never see his get or puppies or recognize them if he should. No law, divine or canine, even suggests that he should give them fatherly care, or keep the family together for their benefit.

In marriage, on the other hand, and here we are speaking of marriage as a religious sacrament and mutually loyal obligation, there is, in theory, at least, and rather often in practice, too, a deep obligation. Most of the marriage ceremonies in use in the United States, say that marriage is a state "to be entered into soberly and discreetly as in the sight of God." The pervading spirit of the ceremony is expressed in those words which obviously could not apply to the mating of two dogs.

Among human beings, the male parent is called the father. It is correct also to speak of him as the sire and even of the children as his get, but those terms are unpleasant to the sensitive and civilized ear because they have for a long time been applied almost exclusively to male animals which have bred young and the progeny.

The Russians, for a time, reduced the relationship between human beings to the status of mated animals. Marriage was retained as a legal contract and relationship but it was subject to revocation at will on formal notice by either party. This novelty was not only a rebellion against the old Russian clergy but an indulgence personally desired by licentious and promiscuous individuals, many of whom had lived in New York, who called their wantonness "liberalism." In fact, in the United States today, the same attitude is much more marked among the political group calling itself "liberal" than among those who are denounced by them as "reactionaries," "Tories" and even "Fascists." Some of them ignore the formality of marriage entirely and others continue to employ it but, after the manner of the early Bolsheviks, only on a temporary and revocable basis. In their teaching of American youth they preach and often practice impermanence in marriage, whereby children are bereft of a parent, usually the father. Such bereavement by death is almost unanimously regarded as a tragedy. Even the most dissolute "liberals" hold that, in such sases, the state should assist the mother economically and take responsibility for the care and, especially the instruction, of the children. But, curiously, where the young are bereft by casual divorce and equally at loss for the care, affection and example of a father, or in fewer cases, their mother, "liberal" thought perceives no problem or distress of the child. The explanation may be that the "liberal" may, himself, be responsible for the plight of one, two or more abandoned sets of children.

The more conservative people regard with suspicion and alarm all efforts of the "liberal" group to organize "youth movements," apprehending, with some reason, that they might teach their children to regard matrimony as a state no more dignified or binding than the momentary relations of any pair of dogs.

In our text we find also the word "romantic" and this, too, is used in a new and artificial meaning, propagated largely by Hollywood where "liberalism" flourishes and marriage has little more meaning than the proceedings in a stud-barn. In the correct modern sense a romance was a fictitious story, usually with a theme of love, but, in the Hollywood version it is almost synonymous with sexual lust and, in this concept, romance usually ends with marriage, although it does not necessarily culminate in marriage.

Another Hollywood word used in a perverted sense so commonly that its true meaning is almost lost is "passion" also meaning lust. Its true meaning is suffering and its classical religions meaning, in contrast to current usage, is the agony of Christ on the cross.

It is, however, no wonder that some old institutions, even sacraments ,and sacred words, have changed status in the minds of some. In the nation as a whole, marriage is only 80 per cent permanent, which is to say that one in five goes to divorce. In some urban and "liberal" localities, the casualty rate is one in three.

But, Fala could not have had a wedding. Possibly some human weddings seem no more sober or discreet than this dog's mating. Nevertheless a dog just can't wed.

"America has given abundantly to the sons of other lands, and many of them, grown wealthy in the land of opportunity, have enriched the country with their philanthropies."—Excerpt from article—"Will We Welcome Immigration?"

The dukes and lords and phoney counts, and off-shoots of the peerage
And those who came across the sea, deep in the hold or steerage,
The roustabouts, the frightened souls, a weird and wild collection—
They came to farm, to mine the coal or work the railroad section.
The brighter ones gave up their jobs of toiling by the hour
And from a stand or peddler's cart went on to wealth and power,
Quite often they were coarse and crude and scorned the ties and collars,
Behaved like bums and gulped their food, but how they grabbed the dollars!
They hid them in the coffee-pot or earth until they rusted
Or stuffed them in the safety box until the box was busted.
The years swept by, as years will go, and they, infirm and old,
Begin to seek some place to leave their stocks and bonds and gold—
They leave endowments for the schools, the swimming pools and parks
Or build a home for widowed cats or bird-nests for the larks.
While they were here the people cursed them for the loot they stole
But when they die they rise and cry, "he was a kindly soul
"He had a warm and tender heart but he was sorta shy
"And we are sure he's headed for a mansion in the sky."
Go spend it now, or spend it then to seek your soul's salvation—
The rolling dollar, bye and bye, gets back in circulation.

Why the Manpower Legislation Lag?

WASHINGTON.—Congress has lagged behind the people on a number of issues from the outset of the war.

That is true with reference to national service legislation to require equal sacrifices in the burdens of war.

In the May bill now before the house, congress now has a chance to catch up. This is not the full national service measure that President Roosevelt and the high military command have asked as essential, but nevertheless it should help considerably to meet the desperate shortages of manpower with which the country now is faced, both for the Army and for industry.

In view of the emergency, it is hard to see how congress can do less.

Inquiry among house members, as they face this compelling issue, reveals a confused state of mind among some of them. They are being pulled this way and that by the professional representatives of various groups—labor, farmers, business—who often do not truly represent the people who are associated with these groups, as has often been demonstrated.

There is evidence, however, that the influence of the public at large —of whom an overwhelming majority are for national service legislation, according to polls—is beginning to make itself felt, particularly one segment.

This is the parents of boys in the Army who feel very strongly, and who are telling members in letters, that those on the home front should contribute their services where they can best be used to win the war. They are not inclined to condone the pushing and hauling by special groups, either outside of congress or in congress.

They are reminding members of individuals in their own communities who are not being useful in the war and could be and should be. They see all this with a vision made acute by the fact that their own boys are off fighting, some of them lost forever. Members, knowing their districts, know whereof these constituents speak.

At this late date, in connection with this much-needed legislation, it must be disturbing to them to see some members trying to capitalize this bill to put over pet projects—southern antilabor members aiming to insert an anticlosed shop amendment, and labor supporters countering with a proposal for fair employment practices committee provisions.

Neither has a place in this measure. Sponsors of each can present them on their own merits in separate legislation. This jockeying about, with the Army and industry crying for manpower to get the job done, could defeat the bill, and not on its merits. This might not sit well with the folks back home.

This measure is to meet a very practical, critical situation.

The Army must have 900,000 more men in the next six months. Industry, now short of manpower, must have an additional 700,000. These are cold facts. Only men under 30 years of age are being used for infantry replacements. There are very few men left under the age of 26. The Army must get its replacements in the 26-to-30 age group and not many of these are left in anything but war industry. Those who are taken from industry must be replaced from elsewhere.

An astonishing fact is that there are today just as many people in the service industries, so-called, as there were before the war—12,000,000. There is plenty of loose money and people are willing to pay for services of various kinds. Many have been attracted into this wartime booming trade who could be useful elsewhere and would be utilized elsewhere under proper legislation.

The threat of legislation has sent people scurrying into war industries. But high military officials and civilian officials in the War Department say this flurry will go on for a time, then subside, as has happened after the numerous big gestures of the War Manpower Commission, as it announces "new and drastic controls" from time to time.

It is easy to confuse the issue, as some are trying to do, by saying there has been a misuse of manpower by the Army and the Navy. Some of this has happened, though the services are doing everything possible to correct it. It is easy also to accuse the Army of errors in its planning, of not calculating closely enough. There has been some of that.

But congress is dealing with a present fact, not with past mistakes.

Minor Engagements Are Often Taut With Drama

Copyright, 1945, for The Atlanta Constitution.

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Jan. 30.—(NANA)—As American divisions press on toward the Siegfried line the war resolves itself into a series of small battles, at company or platoon strength, for hills and villages near the river Our and the west wall. These skirmishes may not involve great losses on either side or much disputed territory; but collectively they are putting us into position for whatever our high command intends to do next.

One such engagement this weekend revolved around the little village of Lascheid, Belgium, and the high ground on its right. Although only two companies were involved in this activity, in its course Saturday and Sunday, it unfolded a sort of homeric drama of strength and weakness, danger, defeat and victory, among a handful of American kids. Only one of our soldiers lost his life in the action, but he is just as dead as if he had been killed on the Polish plains. His fellows are now telling just as tall stories as if the battle of Lascheid had been another Armageddon.

Lascheid consists of a handful of houses built along two streets forming a juncture roughly in the shape of a letter "Y" upside down. It lies below two slopes, with high ground on the right and behind it in a snow-laden forest of pine and fir. I reached the neighborhood Saturday afternoon, after the usual progress through divisional and regimental headquarters to the battalion's advanced command post. Here reports were confusing. Twenty-five "Krauts" were supposed to have been observed digging in just over the crest of a hill at the right of the village—a crest up which L company was then slowly crawling.

I embarked in a jeep with First Lt. Glenn Rugh, of Norristown, Pa., and Writer Meyer Levin on a trip to find out what was going on. We had two tanks ahead of us, but in the rapidly gathering dusk we soon lost them, and ourselves as well. Along one main road we passed long lines of riflemen, lines of men, truck and jeeps which we eventually discovered to be another division. They had been in position for several hours without moving—as is usual in war they were waiting for something on the left and the right.

GIs were jumping up and down to keep warm, and it's good to be able to report they now have their new shoe packs and ski stockings which are a vast improvement on what they had up to a few days ago.

When we finally corrected our error of traffic and got back on to a small trail through the woods behind Lascheid, we progressed very slowly, on the lookout for mines or Jerries. The situation in this forest had been unknown at the battalion C. P. when we left. We found no Jerries but three wandering GIs suddenly loomed up beneath the snowy fir trees. They belonged to L company and had been lost since 10 o'clock in the morning. Needless to say, the artillery was active all this time—mostly our own, but with a good sprinkling of German. Lt. Rugh sent the three lost GIs back to the battalion command post and we crept on to the far edge of the forest overlooking Lascheid. There we found one platoon of a divisional armed reconnaissance group which had been there all afternoon awaiting events. We left our jeep at the edge of the woods and set forth on foot across open ground and down a slope toward the village.

Here, about halfway, we encountered seven breathless, agitated GIs from I company which was supposed to be in Lascheid. One of them was shot through an arm and moaning with pain. The lieutenant sent him back to a medical jeep in the woods. The others told a story of confusion and disaster. I company had been in Lascheid about half an hour when German tanks and infantry made a suddent counterattack in the village street between two houses where two platoons of the company were arranging their quarters for the night. According to these soldiers, I company had broken and vanished in all directions, pursued by wildly yelling Krauts with rifles and hand grenades.

Lt. Rugh, who had formerly commanded I company, obviously did not like this story. He held these six stragglers in the edge of the woods while the radio people got in touch with the battalion command post and asked for two more tanks. Then he formed them up and said, "We are going down into the town to find I company." The six GIs, who had been a picture of terror half an hour before, said, "Yes sir," and marched off quite cheerfully.

It was some hours later before the two tanks arrived and entered the village, followed by armored reconnaissance cars for communications. We stood in the snow for sometime, but the moon-drenched, snowy hills and the valley gave no sound whatever. After a while we decided to tramp down the hill and solve the mystery.

When we got into the little village, of course, the story turned out quite different. First Lt. Fred M. Phillips, of Weston, Ohio, commanding I company, had never lost control of the situation and most of I company, although consisting mainly of replacements getting their first taste of fire this day, had stood firm. There had been one German tank instead of three, and 15 Jerry riflemen instead of 50.

Eating K rations at midnight in the smoky kitchen of one of the village houses, company and platoon leaders told their story. Phillips, who had never fired a bazooka in his life, rattled enough fire on the nides of one German tank to scare it away. The bazooka's back-blast had rimmed his eyes with red burns which he said were nothing. And Second Lt. Bernard Meinschein, of Cockeysville, Md., a platoon leader, had manned another bazooka and between them they had turned back the sashaying Germans. There were four wounded Germans in the village houses and three GI wounded as well as one dead. The battle had lasted about 20 minutes.

Throughout the night which we spent at Lascheid and all the next day this story grew. In the village street it was possible to hear how the Germans had dashed one woman's baby against the wall of a house, killing him. Upon investigation, this woman's grief—which was very noisy and public—proved to be due to the loss of her three cows which had been shot during the battle. The GIs also seemed convinced that the Germans had cold-bloodedly murdered some Americans found in a cellar, although this story was completely unfounded.

Two thoughts spring from the Lascheid episode, which is merely sketched here. The first is this: A myth is born more easily in wartime than otherwise, given lively imagination in our young. And the second is that the conventional military language used in the command post back of the lines gives no idea of what even the smallest action involves. The official reports on Lascheid no doubt say the operation proceeded according to plan.

Twenty-four hours after, those very trails which we crept along so eerily were crowded with transport. The tide has already swept well beyond this village and in another week all in I company will have forgotten its name.

Charge Nazis Still Aid In Aachen Rule

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—CBS Correspondent Eric Sevareid quoted the London Daily Express today as saying that American military authorities in Aachen, Germany, were using a large number of former Nazi party officials to operate the local government.

The broadcast quoted an Express correspondent as stating that "the Nazis are still running Aachen," first large-sized German city to be captured by U. S. forces, "because American officers say there is no one else to do it. German Socialists complain that their representatives are being kept out of office."

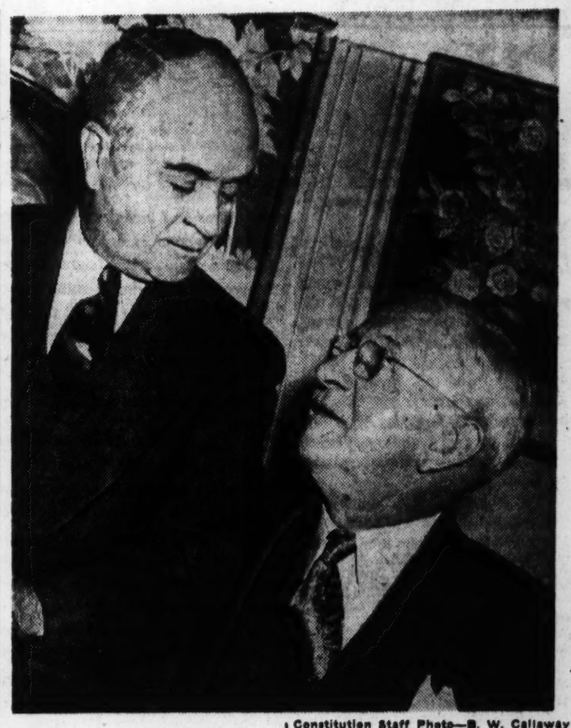

Socialists were quoted as complaining that in neighboring captured Stolberg, 85 of 87 municipal officials are former Nazi party members, and that the present lord mayor of Aachen was a director of a corporation which manufactured parts for V-weapons.

Associated Press War Correspondent Wade Werner in a story from Aachen last Oct. 30 described the swearing in the new mayor of the town by Lt. Col. A. A. Carmichael, of Montgomery, Ala., and described him as "the first anti-Nazi in 11 years to be the chief administrative officer of any major German city."

He was chosen, Werner wrote, by military government officers from a "white list" of a dozen Aachen citizens of established executive ability, known, after painstaking investigation, never to have been Nazis or supporters of the Nazi movement.

ROSY FUTURE—Abner H. Ferguson, left, FHA commissioner, predicts a bright postwar world to R. E. Matheson, state director, before his talk to the Atlanta Home Builders' Association.

80th Liberty Ship

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The eightieth Liberty ship constructed here sailed down the ways 15 minutes ahead of schedule today bearing the name of Harold Dossett, Indiana merchant seaman, killed in his torpedoed ship in 1942.

Bright Future Predicted For Building Firms

With a long-standing housing shortage coupled with 12,000,000 men and women eligible for GI loans, and a potential market of $108,000,000,000, the American private building industry faces one of the most enormous possibilities of any industry during postwar expansion.

That prediction, coupled with a warning of its grave and staggering responsibilities, came from Abner H. Ferguson, FHA commissioner, who spoke yesterday before the Atlanta Home Builders' Association.

Some 75 builders, real estate men and loan officials, gathered at the Henry Grady hotel, heard Ferguson laud their part in wartime housing.

"The builders have done one of the most patriotic jobs of this war. Private housing went ahead in building in the face of great uncertainties about materials and government curtailments. Now that's about through, with a rosy future ahead," said Ferguson.

The extent of private building will be gauged largely by the industry's ability to build, he added, pointing out a postdepression shortage, a wartime shortage and 8,000,000 war marriages as typical of the market.

"You must see that the future will bring constant, long-term prosperity, not a boom in the first five years and depression afterwards. The collapse of the '30s came as a result of the boom of the '20s. Then the HOLC had to step in and refinance unsoundly sold and unsoundly financed homes."

He assured his hearers that the "FHA is with you all the way," and asked that they pay particular attention to helping returned servicemen, who are "the boys who got the worst of everything in wartime, and should get the best in peacetime."

Women Voters To Meet

The history and purposes of the Hospital Authority will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Atlanta League of Women Voters at 12:30 p. m. today at the Biltmore hotel. Speakers will include Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the authority; Scott Candler, DeKalb county commissioner; Clarence Duncan, Fulton county commissioner; Mayor Hartsfield and Dr. J. Edgar Paullin, past president of the American Medical Association.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right
If you have to get up 2 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney and Bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the Kidneys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backaches, or swollen ankles, due to functional or non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous, happy relief in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory. Cystex costs only 3¼ at druggists.

ALL IN THE GAME
JACK TROY

Alex Serves Well I was trying to measure the influence Bill Alexander has exerted in southern athletics. But I don't have a yardstick that long. Alex isn't through being an important figure in sports. He simply has stepped down from the high-pressure job of coaching football to do other important things. Directing Tech's physical program, in conjunction with his old duties of athletic director, will take all of his time.

But as I started out to say, there's hardly any way to measure the influence Bill Alexander has exerted in southern athletics in a quarter of a century.

I think of him as the last of a great quartet of men who fathered and nurtured and raised southern athletics to prime adulthood. Dan McGugin, H. J. Stegeman, Al Doonan and Bill Alexander. These are undying names in college circles of Dixie.

Alex is the last of the great group, and his work will go on. He won't have to demand so much of his store of stamina. He can put his experience to work in other ways.

There is no coach left in the Southeastern Conference who can approach Alex's length of service. Frank Thomas is now the dean. And he has been head coach of Alabama only 14 years. Alex is stepping down after 25 years, five bowl games and six conference championships.

Alex wouldn't confirm the championships.

"I never went in for those statistics," he declared.

Only Thomas can approach Alex in bowl games. Thomas this year completed the cycle for Alabama. Each has been to five bowls, Alex twice going to the Orange Bowl and Thomas twice to the Rose Bowl. Alex has had Tech teams in four bowls in the last six years.

They Respect Dodd In 1942 Bill Alexander was named coach of the year. Previously he was president of the American Football Coaches' Association. He is a member of the national rules committee.

Nationally, Alexander is regarded on the same high plane as the late Knute Rockne. The old guard will respect Bobby Dodd, Alex's successor and assistant for 14 years. They know that a successor to a man of such stature must necessarily be strong and talented.

Dodd is a rare combination of coach-athlete. He has the patience of a Job, the fortitude of a Spartan, and he doesn't follow any set pattern. He will risk the unorthodox to gain a point or maybe six.

Coach Alex has leaned heavily on him for spectacular offensive tactics at Tech. Alex would busy himself teaching linemen stance, charge and such while Dodd acquainted the backs with pass patterns and hidden ball maneuvers.

The Dodd-Alexander combination has been most successful.

We were talking yesterday about coaches running afoul high-scoring teams.

"I've already experienced baptism by fire, if you ask me," Dodd pointed out. He referred to a Georgia-Georgia Tech game of three years ago when he handled the team in Coach Alexander's absence. A rampant Georgia Bulldog eleven defeated the Jackets by 34 to 0.

Great on His Feet Dodd has the same sort of sense of humor as Alex and he is composed and at ease in any company. He has become a famous narrator of Tech's game films. His running commentary has a sort of Bob Hope flavor. He improvises as he goes along.

It's important for a head coach to be a good speaker. Dodd is. He wins an audience readily.

At the Columbus quarterback dinner, he told assembled members and guests—

"Appearing for Coach Bill Alexander is the same as Eleanor Roosevelt trying to play a glamor girl role for Ann Sheridan."

Dodd also was pretty sly when he told them—

"It's banquets such as these that have put Coach Alex's stomach on the blink."

Tech's new head coach has the confidence of the Jacket followers. They like his style of offensive football and they feel, as head coach, he'll shoot the works at all times.

At a school where coaching changes occur only three times in 41 years, a fellow starting out as head coach doesn't have to worry about too much alumni pressure. And that is as it should be.

"Old Man" Steps Down, Dodd Head Coach at Tech

Alexander To Remain As Director

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

Bobby Dodd yesterday became Georgia Tech's third head coach in 41 years.

Dodd was en route to Atlanta from the first annual party of the Columbus Quarterback Club when the Tech athletic board met formally, elected Dodd head coach and voted not only to retain W. A. Alexander as athletic director but to make him director of physical training.

Dodd met Alexander outside the athletic offices as Alex was preparing to take a couple of newspapermen to lunch.

"Come on and go to lunch with us, Bob," Alex said.

"Fine. But tell me what the board did. The meeting's over, I guess."

"You're the new head coach, Robert," a writer told him.

"Well, I didn't know. How much are they going to pay me?" Dodd yelled back over his shoulder as he darted into the athletic office to wash his hands.

"KNEW IT ALL THE TIME"

"Shucks, don't listen to him; he knew he had the job," Coach Alex replied. (Alex, who has been telling Dodd for the last six or seven years that he was going to retire before another season, finally listened to the advice of doctors and friends).

Alex was relieved of the duties of head coach at his own request, paving the way for the election of Dodd, 14 years assistant football coach. Dodd, native of Galax, Tenn., prep star at Kingsport and an All-America at the University of Tennessee, came directly to Tech following graduation in 1931. Dodd coached the backfield and also was freshman basketball and baseball coach. He is married to the former Alice Davis, sister of an ex-Tech halfback, Wink Davis. The Dodds have two fine children, Linda, 7, and Bobby Jr., 2.

Dodd hadn't thought about the angle of being only the third Tech coach in 41 years. "Gosh, that's right. I really appreciate the honor," he said.

Coach Alex said: "Yes, that's right. John Heisman had the job for 16 years and I carried on for 25. Dodd ought to be good for another 30."

30 WHEN HE STARTED

Coach Alex became head coach at a rather tender age. He was only 30 when he succeeded Heisman in 1920. Alex, a native of Mud River, Ky., had gone to Tech as a student in 1906. He scrubbed every year except 1911, when he made the varsity team. He started coaching in 1912 and was Heisman's assistant from that time until he was given the top job.

Old-timers will recall that there had been quite a little opposition to giving the job to a man so young. The Tech students were ready to revolt if necessary to get the board to name Alexander as Heisman's successor. Not many men, then or now, become coaches at major institutions as young as 30.

Alex's outstanding record as a coach includes five major bowl games (three victories) and six Southeastern Conference championships.

Tech's unbeaten 1928 team won over California, 8 to 7, in the Rose Bowl. In 1939, the Jackets defeated Missouri, 21 to 7, in the Orange Bowl; the 1942 team lost to Texas, 14 to 7, in the Cotton Bowl; the 1943 team completed the cycle of major bowls by defeating Tulsa, 20 to 18, in the Sugar Bowl. Alex's fifth bowl team lost to Tulsa, 26 to 12, on New Year's Day at Miami, Fla.

132 WINS, 94 LOSSES

Alex's team has won 132 games, lost 94 and tied 14 in 25 seasons. In the last few years, Alex has supervised the entire sports program at Tech and has served as co-ordinator of the Navy -12 physical program. He has looked after the mess hall and the Navy dormitories, and, in addition, has handled the business affairs of the Tech athletic association. Dr. A. H. Armstrong has been away for some time on sick leave.

As Coach Alex drops all active connection with the football coaching setup, Bob Dodd is free to name his own assistants and to begin spring pratice when he wishes. He probably won't call the Tech squad before the end of February. Dodd is expected to retain the present assistants.

COACH ALEX STEPS DOWN—After 25 years at the helm of Georgia Tech football teams, famed Coach W. A. Alexander (left) resigned yesterday and Robert Lee (Bobby) Dodd (right) was named to the position on Coach Alexander's recommendation. Coach Alexander will remain as athletic director and head of physical education at the school he brought to the top.

Jordan Beats Purples, Smithies Nip Columbus

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Little Shorty's team took Big Shorty's team last night, but it took every ounce of everything Little Shorty's team had to do it.

That it by way of saying B. F. (Shorty) Register's Jordan High quintet continued merrily on its unbeaten way in G. I. A .A. play by shading Big Shorty Doyal's Boys' High five, 37 to 36, for its eighth consecutive league victory. At that the lads from Columbus gained only an even break as O. V. Bruner's Tech High club thumped Columbus High, 41 to 26, in the opening game of the twin bill at Henry Grady court before the largest crowd of the season to date.

Alex Truitt's Blue Devils took a 5-0 lead at the outset, but after the Smithies got organized it was nip and tuck the remainder of the way until Lefty Bob Mitchell got hot in the final quarter to bag 10 of his total 17 points to hand the Village Smithies a comfortable edge at the end.

The Boys' High-Jordan game was a highly sensational order despite the fact 17 fouls were called on each team in the very rough going. Jim Patrick and Burch Haynes fouled out for Jordan and "Step" Lively collected one too many fouls for the Purples, Harold Rose, of Jordan, was hurt and lost to the Red Devil cause in the third quarter. Boys' High led, 10 to 5, at the quarter and 20 to 16 at the half. It was 28-all at the three-quarter mark and the lead changed hands several times in the final period. It was a long field goal by Prue Wilson that finally iced the verdict for Jordan.

Grand Jury Will Probe Cage Bets

Collegians Confess To Accepting Bribe For 'Throwing' Games

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A grand jury investigation of gambling on college basketball games—it has been estimated that $300,000 has changed hands on a single game in Madison Square Garden—was ordered today as college officials moved to stamp out the practice.

Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz, of the Kings county court, instructed the grand jury to "hand up any indictments necessary" only an hour after Harvey Stemmer, described by police as a gambler, was arraigned on a charge of giving $1,000 to five Brooklyn College athletes to throw tonight's game with Akron in the Boston Garden. The game was cancelled.

Stemmer was held in $2,500 bail for further hearing on Feb. 5. His companion, Harry Rosen, was arraigned in Manhattan on another charge but Asst. Dist. Atty. Barnard Alderman said Rosen also would be arraigned on the bribery charge.

Asa S. Bushnell, commissioner of Eastern Athletics and a member of the NCAA committee which recently investigated betting on college results, said the "athletic directors must now organize in strength to protect college games" and that they must find the means "of eliminating gamblers completely from the picture."

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, asked the aid of the public and press in seeing to it that the bookmakers, "these cheap, tinhorn chiselers, these procurers, these punks and thieves," be thrown into jail.

Betting on colliege results, a major activity among the men-of-chance for years, jumped after the close of the race tracks on Jan. 3.

Man-to-man betting prevails in some quarters but the more popular type is giving a bookmaker points if the bettor places his money on the favorite or taking points if wagering on the underdog. The bookie allows himself a two-point spread and if the score hits the "middle" the bookies win all bets.

Brooklyn College was the underdog in tonight's game and the alleged arrangements were planned to insure the Kingsmen's loss by a specified number of points.

The five athletes, named by prosecutors as Bernard Barnett, Larry Pearlstein, Robert Leder, Jerry Green and Stanley Simon, have been dropped from the Brooklyn squad. Dr. Richard Boyce, director of athletics, said the school would continue its program and play out its basketball schedule although tonight's game was cancelled.

West End Club Re-Elects Slate Of 1944 Officers

By JACK TROY.

The 32d annual meeting of the West End Golf Club Tuesday night was marked by spirited discussion on the election of officers, but the will of the membership prevailed and the same slate was re-elected for another season.

A sumptuous serving of fried fish, hush puppies and chicken should have paved the way for a harmonious session. But it isn't often that golfers can gather and not argue, whethey they are on the course or in the clubroom.

Paul Ford had an idea he wanted to step aside and let someone else be president. He was re-elected. J. A. Womack was out of town and didn't have a voice in the meeting. He'll serve as vice president for another year. T. D. Body is treasurer and A. J. Kaiser, himself, is secretary.

At a late hour the membership hadn't decided on a board of directors. Chances are the same board was re-elected. All officers served well last year at the famous West End club.

Thirty-two years ago Chauncey Chamberlain, chairman of the finance committee, and six other gentlemen organized the West End Golf Club. Mr. Chamberlain is the only charter member left. He was present at the meeting last night.

The treasurer's report revealed that the West End club owes practically nobody. In other words, as someone suggested, "we're solvent."

This condition is attributed by the membership to the untiring efforts and the ound business administration of The Constitution's A. J. Kaiser, the club secretary, and one of the moving spirits in the organization.

Russell High Winner Over West Fulton

By BETTY ANN KEMP

West Fulton's Owls suffered an other loss in N. G. I. C. play yesterday afternoon, bowing to Russell, 35-26, on the West Fulton court, but they made a battle out of it most of the first half.

The teams were tied 16-all just before the half, but Russell moved up to take a 20-17 lead at the intermission. Russell added a 15-9 margin in the second half to 'a' e the decision.

Pruitt, the Russell center, led the scoring with 14 points, but was little ahead of Irvine McDonald, who rang up an even dozen.

The lineups:

W. FULTON (26)	Pos.	RUSSELL (35)
Norris (3)	F	Bowen (5)
Barnett (7)	F	Pruitt (14)
McDonald (12)	C	Hatch (10)
Price (4)	G	Ramage (14)
Hall	G	Sconyers (2)

Score at half: Russell 20, West Fulton 17.

Substitutions: West Fulton, Crawford, Richardson.

Referee: Brice.

Louise Suggs Wins at Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Favorites found the going rough today in the first round of the Helen Lee Doherty women's golf tournament, and when the firing was over the medalist, the 1944 winner and other better-known players were casualties.

Mrs. George E. Wilcox, of Miami, knocked out the medalist, Mrs. Ruth May, of Neponsit, Long Island, 6 and 5.

Last year's winner, Marjorie Row, of Anniston, Ala., fell 4 and 2, before the stroking of Margie Beeker, of Englewood, N. J.

Peggy Kirk, of Rollins College, eliminated her schoolmate, Georgia Tainter, a former winner of the Doherty trophy, 2 and 1.

Mrs. L. C. Pray downed Mrs. Florence Bobo, 5 and 4, in an all-Miami match.

Alice O'Neal, of Rollins, downed her favored schoolmate, Jeanne Cline, 4 and 3.

The Florida state champion, Mrs. Billie Martin, of Miami, ousted Jane Crum Covington, of Orangeburg, S. C., 1 up.

Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., one of the favorites, came through with a 6-and-5 decision over Babe Wolf, of Orlando.

Beverly Hanson, of Rollins, defeated Mrs. Thomas Nolan, of New Castle, Pa., 1 up.

Druid Hills Girls Beat Seminary

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE.

The N. G. I. C.'s leading Druid Hills sextet defeated the only other previously undefeated high school girls' team in Atlanta, Washington Seminary, 31-25, on the Druid Hills court Tuesday afternoon before a tremendous crowd of fans from both schools.

Sparked by Shirley Zittrouer's fine passing and individual 16-point scoring spree, the Druid Hills lassies, coached by Louise Wadsworth, trampled over the Peachtree girls during the first half, 21 to 9. However, Washington Seminary came back strong after the rest period and outscored the ultimate winners during the second half, 16 to 10. Jane Morrill paced the losers' attack with 13 points.

The win was Druid Hills' first over Washington Seminary in several years. The Druid Hills victory removes some of the fear other N. G. I. C. sextettes have always felt towards the Peachtree team in the Fifth District tournament play that gets under way in three weeks at Decatur.

Medics Winners Over Arena, 50-44

The MDTS cagers, currently the hottest league team in Atlanta, moved out in 'ront of the Walco Men's League Monday night at Sports Arena by downing a scrappy Sports Arena team, 50-44, breaking a 44-44 deadlock two and one-half minutes before the game ended.

Lawson, co-occupant of first place with the Meds, had its game with Ordnance postponed so MDTS moved out in front. The MDTS and Sports Arena swapped the lead back and forth, but Johnny Moon fouled out near the end of the game and the Meds pulled out in front.

A reorganized Optimist Club team lost to the ASF Officers, 47-34, as Lt. Ralph Hamilton shot 36 points for the winners, two more than the losers counted. Levin had 14 points for the losers.

For MDTS, Schuster had 21 points with Hearn leading the Optimists with 14.

Canton Defeats North Fulton

CANTON, Ga., Jan. 30.—Canton's Greenies handed Coach Weyman Tucker's North Fulton basketeers a 29-to-19 setback here tonight.

The score was deadlocked at the half, 12 to 12. Johnston, with 10 points, was high scorer for the Greenies. Jimmy Workman led the visiting offensive with 10 counters.

Service League Games Scheduled

Two good contests are scheduled for the College Park auditorium court tonight when Lawson General plays Atlanta Ordnance and the ASF Officers take on Fort McPherson's cagers in Army-Navy League tilts.

The first game will get underway at 8 o'clock.

Led by former All-American Ralph Hamilton and Johnny Hines, the ASF team provides a stern test for the rapidly improving Fort Mac team. Ordnance has also been showing signs of breaking loose and may give the Lawson outfit a tougher battle than past records would indicate.

Rams Trounced By Typists, 37-20

College Park divided a twin bill with Commercial's Typists last night at the Fulton court, winning the girls' game, 39 to 32, and dropping the boys' encounter, 37 to 20.

The girls' game was the most interesting, being fairly evenly contested throughout. Commercial led 22 to 16 at the half and 27 to 25 at the end of the third quarter before Coach Harland Harris' lassies took command.

The Typists had things pretty much their own way in the boys' game. They ran up a 21 to 10 advantage at halftime and were never threatened thereafter. Forty fouls were called in this tilt.

320-Pound Talun To Battle Dillon On Mat Program

The world's heavyweight championship wrestling match featuring titlist Wild Bill Longson and Challenger Big Chief Saunooke Saturday night at the City Auditorium will be supported by four outstanding preliminaries, it was announced by Promoter Paul Jones.

One of the outstanding competitors in the supporting cast will be towering Blockbuster Talun, 320-pound Polish giant. The huge Pole, who will be making his first start here, will face Rowdy Jack Dillon, of Chattanooga. Talun has been sensational during his swing through the midwest, and Promoter Jones is confident that he will prove a crowd-pleaser here.

The championship struggle between Longson and Saunooke should be one of the best ever staged here. Atlanta fans have been clamoring for this match ever since Longson decisioned the Big Chief here last fall. Saunooke is fully capable of lifting the title from Wild Bill if he keeps on his toes. He had all the best of the going in their last meeting until a sudden lapse left him open for a powerful dropkick, which promptly terminated the match in Longson's favor. The Chief says he plans to play smart all the way this time.

Three other outstanding bouts will also be staged on the card. Advance ticket sales indicate another capacity crowd, which is usually the case when Wild Bill puts his championship belt on the line.

Hapeville Hornets Sting Fulton High

Hapeville's Hornets staged a second-half rally to nip Fulton High, 33 to 32, in a real cage thriller Tuesday night at the Russell court.

The Redbirds were out in front, 18 to 12, at halftime but could not match the second-half splurge of Hapeville.

In the girls' game, Fulton won by a 23-to-17 count. Tingle was high scorer for Hapeville, caging 10, while the Fulton attack was headed by Patterson with 12.

Fred Martin Gets 6 Years, Fined $9,000

Convicted last night on 15 separate lottery charges, Wesley Barron, alias Fred Martin, alleged "big shot of the bug racket" in Atlanta, today faces six years in prison and a fine of $9,000.

Judge John S. McClelland, in Fulton county criminal court, imposed this sentence immediately after the jury gave its verdict. The jury convicted Martin on all 15 counts of the indictment after five minutes' deliberation. In Martin's first trial last week, there was a mistrial.

In sentencing Martin, Judge McClelland scored the "bug racket" in strong terms and said it was directly responsible for the death of Henry Heinz, Atlanta banker, killed in his home more than a year ago.

"The confessed slayer of Henry Heinz," said Judge McClelland, "has admitted that he engaged in such crimes solely to obtain money to play the 'bug.' Men like you who operate this infamous racket must thus share responsibility for such crimes. It's too bad that a man of your ability should devote his energies to such anti-social activities."

Judge McClelland sentenced Martin to one year in prison on each of the 15 counts of the indictment, each term to be served consecutively. But he then said he would direct suspension of the last nine years of the sentence, provided Martin, after serving six years, paid a fine of $9,000, or $1,000 for each year of the suspended sentence.

J. A. Twilley Dies Of Traffic Hurts

Injuries sustained more than a week ago when knocked down by a large truck have resulted in the death of John A. Twilley, 66, of 616 Griffin street.

This Year 2 Last Year

Twilley, struck by the truck as he crossed Edgewood at Piedmont avenue, died yesterday in Grady hospital as the result of a fractured skull.

Radio Patrolmen J. W. Belcher and E. G. Cowan, who investigated the accident, said Twilley was struck by a vehicle operated by J. H. Sharp, of Mableton.

Sharp told the officers that an axle on the truck broke, causing him to lose control.

ist and warrior of my nation, let me tell these statesmen once and for all that any attempts to make an impression on Nazi Germany by using phrases of the kind used by (President Woodrow) Wilson presumes a simplicity of mind which is unknown in the Germany of today."

SOCIALISM PRAISED

The Fuehrer contended that resistance the Reich is now offering was made possible "only by the internal transformation of the German people" by national socialism and added, "If the spirit of Versailles still prevailed in Germany today, Europe would have been swept by the Asiatic springtide long ago."

Hitler described himself as "a ruthless national socialist and warrior of my nation" as he defiantly cried that Germany would never go down "before the Bolshevists."

Again as in previous dramatic utterances he declared that his own life mattered little.

"I do not want to leave any doubt about another matter on this day; my present life is being determined solely by the duties which lie upon me . . . to work for my people and fight for them," he asserted.

Hitler claimed "the Almighty" had saved him from assassination last July and declared he would "therefore continue on my path of uncompromising representation of the interests of my people . . . imbued with the sacred conviction that in the end the Almighty will not let down a man who wanted nothing else throughout his life but to save his people from a fate which they have not deserved."

The invaded and sorely beset German nation was given less than two hours' notice that Hitler would mark the twelfth anniversary of his assumption of power with the address.

The Fuehrer began with a short review of the happenings since Jan. 30, 1933, and said, "We were given only six years of peace after Jan. 30, 1933, but in those six years tremendous deeds were achieved and more tremendous deeds are planned."

Of the nation's present dire straits under the Russian hammer blows, he said, "Tens and hundreds of thousands are being exterminated in the east, but the horrid fate will be mastered in the end in spite of all reverses and stern tests."

SPEAKS CALMLY AT START

When Hitler himself came to the microphone, he spoke in level tones at the start.

Soon after the start of the broadcast a heckling ghost voice broke into the transmission.

Hitler said that, although the Germans' fate in the east was now cruel, a harder fate was in store for them if they lost the war.

"Any suffering our enemies may inflict on German towns and countrysides and especially on our people, are nothing beside the irretrievable suffering and misery which would follow victory by the plutocratic Bolshevist conspiracy," he asserted.

CALLS ON DEITY

Hitler twice called on the Deity as his and his people's standby.

"It is our firm resolve to shirk from nothing in this struggle," he said. "The Almighty has created our nation and by defending our existence we are defending His works. We will do our duty in the most critical times."

Again he said, "I can only be absolved from my duty by Him (God) who called me to work and fight for my people."

"Whoever stabs us in the back will die an ignominious death."

Hitler spoke for 20 minutes.

BIG THREE

lies have begun showering German lines explain the "unconditional surrender" goal announced at Casablanca.

Unconditional surrender, the pamphlets declare, "would not mean that Germans who surrender would be at the mercy of the victorious side." On the contrary, they would "be under the protection of the Geneva convention and would be treated with fairness."

The pamphlets, one of the first direct attempts by Allied propagandists in recent months to drive a wedge between the German people and their rulers, also say:

"It is the wish of the Allies to give the German people the possibility for normal peaceful development as members of the European family of nations."

The announcement said "individual Germans who had nothing to do with the crimes committed by war criminals will not be taken to account for those crimes."

Harry Hopkins, the President's personal aide, left Rome today after talks with Pope Pius XII, Allied and Italian military and political officials. It was not known whether he still was in Italy. He refused to admit to correspondents that he knew when or where the Big Three meeting would be held, but expressed the opinion that the conference would be brief, largely because Stalin is busy with the active direction of the Russian armies. Hopkins also said he might go to Moscow.

Two other American officials who might sit in on the conference, Secretary of State Stettinius and War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes, were officially announced to have left Washington.

Claiming that the conference was "only a matter of hours away," the Berlin radio said a high British official, "possibly (Foreign Secretary Anthony) Eden," had passed through Paris by plane en route to Rome.

These signs were observed in London: Churchill, whose movements are guarded by security censorship, did not appear in the house of commons this morning, Deputy Prime Minister Richard Attlee substituting for him. George Hall, undersecretary for foreign affairs, answered for the government in place of Eden.

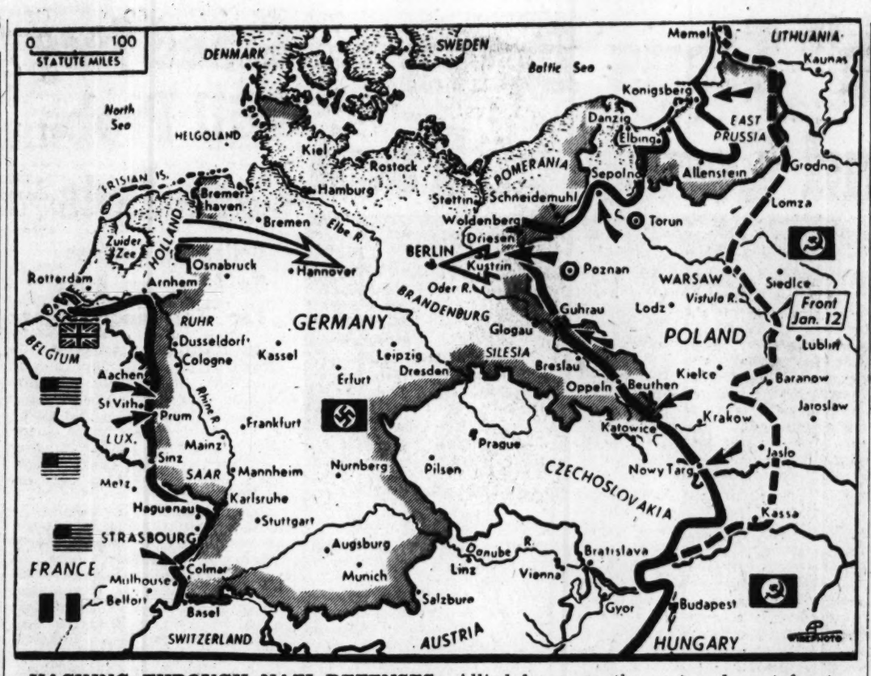

The journeys to Moscow of ambassadors led to speculation that the Soviet capital might be the site of the parley. Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British ambassador to the Soviet Union, has returned to Moscow after a visit here. The Russian ambassadors to Britain and the United States are in Moscow for consultations.

HACKING THROUGH NAZI DEFENSES—Allied forces on the east and west fronts in Europe continued to chop through German lines yesterday. To the east, the Russians drove within 73 miles of Berlin in an offensive (open arrow) aimed straight at that city, with the fortress city of Kustrin apparent goal of the new thrust. American First Army forces on the west knocked a four-mile gap in the Siegfried line, in Germany, and Germans were reported withdrawing troops for Holland (open arrow). Black arrows indicate main points of continuing and heavy Allied pressure.

73 MILES TO GO—With Russian troops capturing Stolzenberg, 73 miles from Berlin, harassed Germans of the Reich capital face a situation similar to one Atlantans would face if an enemy army of invasion stood poised at Athens. It's about 73 road miles from here to the Classic City. Distances by road total slightly more than direct airline distances, shown by circles 20 miles apart on map.

stadt, just west of the Polish border.

In their advances west of Poznan Tuesday, the Soviets captured more than 200 towns, including Betsche, Tirsiegel, Bomst and Unrugstadt, all just west of the border on a front about 28 miles long.

A German Transocean Agency broadcast said, without confirmation, that Zhukov's forces had reached a line extending through Zullichau, Schweibus and Meseritz, all west of the Obra river and approximately 80 miles east of Berlin.

MAY BE CLOSER

In this sector, however, military circles in both Moscow and London said, the Russian armored spearheads might be even closer than 80 miles of the capital.

Yesterday's communique indicated that Konigsberg had been closely encircled, stating that Metgethen, three miles west, and Heyde-Walburg, five miles southwest, had been captured; declared German troops attempting to break through to Elbing, East Prussian Baltic port, had been repulsed; announced capture of Marienwerder on the Vistula estuary near the western border of East Prussia, and told of further advances northeast of Scheidemuhl in Pomerania.

There was no news of the fighting in Breslau or any other sector of Silesia in the communique, operations in that sector being cloaked in security silence.

In the Carpathian mountains in southern Poland, it said, Russian forces continuing their offensive west and southwest captured Zakopane and 80 other towns, while in central Slovakia gains of 13 to 18 miles and the capture of more than 100 communities was reported.

West and southwest of Katowice, Poland, more than 60 towns were seized in the Russian mopup of that territory rich in minerals and other natural resources.

The offensive directly east of Berlin, however, held the focus of attention on the eastern front.

"German border troops bitterly engaged the enemy in heavy battles everywhere, but have not been able to prevent his crossing the rivers," one Berlin commentator reported.

As Zhukov struck on the Brandenburg and Pomeranian sectors, the closest to Berlin on the eastern front, the Moscow radio claimed panic was spreading among civilians and evacuation of the two provinces had been speeded up.

The Russian Army newspaper, Red Star, declared, "the Germans no longer have separate Soviet wedges to deal with. The White front from the Baltic to the Danube is on the move."

The besieged Nazi garrison in Budapest, which has continued to hold out while the Red Army effected its phenomenal westward surges farther north, still is defending itself against "fierce Russian attacks from the west and south" which were supported by heavy aircraft formations, the German communique said.

region east of Monschau and Simmerath, outflanking strong pillbox defenses and advancing up to four miles into the face of the Siegfried line against spotty enemy resistance.

One American corps officer was quoted as saying, "The attack is going so well that we are going to accomplish in one day what we had hoped to do in two."

The action took place in the same area where two months ago the Germans had smashed two U. S. infantry divisions in some of the heaviest fighting on the western front. Today the doughboys encountered only reluctant defensive troops.

One Third Army division drove a quarter of a mile east to a point three-quarters of a mile from Welchenhausen, which is eight and a half miles south of St. Vith. The drive put the doughboys three-quarters of a mile inside Germany at this point.

Other units of the same division pushed about a half-mile to the east and reached the Reich frontier just south of Diepert, seven and a half miles below St. Vith. Farther north they edged one-quarter of a mile east to Steffhausen, which is a mile west of the German border.

Front dispatches said patrols of the 17th Airborne Division and elements of the Sixth Armored Division had reached the Our river in seven places over a six-mile front from points five miles northeast of Clervaux to points 5 1-2 miles southeast of the town.

Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball reported from the front that the U. S. Ninth Division had captured Rohren which is just south of the Roer at the edge of the Monschau forest, two miles south of the town of Monschau. Other divisions occupied a string of villages in the last German-held strip of Belgium soil and smashed on to within sight of the Reich frontier.

The towns of Murringen and Hunningen fell to the First Division which pressed on to Honsfeld and Lanzerath almost on the border. Other troops, of the Second and 99th Divisions, reached the edge of the Monschau forest, Ball said.

Six divisions of the First Army were named as being in action today including the First, Second, Ninth, 78th, 99th and one other not identified.

The Second Division took Krinkfelt and Rocherath, scenes of the second's epic stand to hold the northern shoulder of the German breakthrough into Belgium in December.

So heavy was the snow that bulldozer tanks in some cases had to break paths for the infantry. Prisoners were being taken in steady but undisclosed numbers.

The Berlin radio, asserting that German western front lines were "wavering" in several sectors as a result of the new American attacks, said all available reserves were being thrown into the fight to try to stabilize the front but that the Americans had advanced "several kilometers."

PULPWOOD CUTTERS GIVEN TOP 'WAR WORKER' DEFERMENT IN DRAFT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The War Manpower Commission today issued a revised list of critical occupations for which Selective Service Boards may grant draft deferment. This new list raises "the cutting of pulpwood" as well as the "production of pulp made from pulpwood and other substances" from a merely "essential" to a "critical" rating.

WHAT THIS MEANS TO PULPWOOD CUTTERS

- If you are of draft age (26 or over) you may be deferred until all available men in both "essential" and non-essential occupations are inducted.
- If you are now cutting pulpwood and have been deferred, stick to your job full-time.
- If you are now in a merely "essential" occupation and want to get into "critical" pulpwood production, do so at once. Then apply to your draft board for deferment.

John Robert Powers discusses his famous "Girls" with Mrs. Jo Berg, of Atlanta, at the Stork Club in New York.

John Robert Powers Talks About His Famous 'Girls'

"If I send 12 of my most glamorous girls to your show," said John Robert Powers to Jo Berg, "will you promise to come back up here with them?"

The scene was the Stork Club, that famous meeting place of cafe society in New York city. The time was early January. The actors in the little drama were John Robert Powers of the famous Powers agency, and Mrs. Herman Berg, known to all Atlanta as Jo Berg, fashion co-ordinator at Rich's.

Mrs. Berg, who went to New York to "accessorize" the clothes to be sent to Atlanta by nine famous houses for the Junior League Show, "Fashionata," being produced by Rich's Feb. 28 at the city auditorium, also had as one of her important duties, a consultation on the selection of "12 long-stemmed American beauties" from Mr. Powers' agency.

"It was quite a problem," said Mrs. Berg. "All the Powers girls are so beautiful, so natural, fresh and charming, that Leonore Morgan, of Rich's public relations dedepartment, who went with me on this errand, and I, were really glad to leave the selection of the girls to the man who knows his orchids . . . John Powers himself."

Questioned about Mr. Powers, Mrs. Berg answered with a gleam in her gray eyes: "He is just as attractive as can be. He is very good looking, as you can see from his picture, and he has all the charm that a good looking Irishman can have . . . which is plenty."

"How about that picture, Jo?" asked her interrogator, pointing to the glasses of what appeared to be milk in front of her and Mr. Powers. "Is that a prop?"

"Indeed it isn't!" laughed Jo. "We had some of the girls in that day to be interviewed, and we thought that it would be nice to give them a little cocktail party. Well, it was nice, but most of the girls ordered milk! And of course I could do no less!"

It seems that one reason why the Powers girls are always so fresh and winsome is that they take pains to keep that way. Mr. Powers selects girls, not because they look like "models," but because they are natural looking, charming American types.

"Mr. Powers cautioned us," Jo said, "not to refer to his girls as models. That connotation has come to mean somebody sort of dramatic or artificial looking in New York, which is the reason why Mr. Powers likes his girls to be called girls."

The Powers girls were all interested in "Fashionata," and those who are coming down to take part in the show were greatly complimented at being chosen.

Clothes from Hattie Carnegie, Maurice Rentner, Nettie Rosenstein, Adrian, Pattullo, Adele Simpson, Spectator, Ben Gershal, Zuckerman and Kraus will be shown in "Fashionata," not only by the 12 lovely Powers girls, but also by two dozen local girls, some of whom are Rich's own models, and other models drafted for the show. Members of the Atlanta Junior League who have had professional modeling experience are also appearing.

"We felt we were a real social success," Mrs. Berg said, "when Sherman Billingsley, the famous owner of the Stork Club, sent champagne over to our table. We hear that he does this only when he is pleased with his guests!"

Her interviewer was somewhat non-plussed. "Jo," she inquired, "if you and the Powers girls all drank milk, what became of the champagne?"

Jo Berg laughed . . . her contagious rippling sort of laugh. "Well," she admitted, "It wasn't the waiters!"

SALLY FORTH Says:

'The Mondays' Plan Surprise For One of Their Number

There are few things comparable to genuine friendship. And there is no balm which could soothe the heart of a mother who had just said "good-bye" to her only son, leaving for overseas, like the thoughtful gesture shown Mary Hill (Mrs. Bruce) Woodruff recently by a trio of her close friends.

Bruce Jr., who is a fireman, first class, on an LST, came home for a two-week furlough with his parents on Habersham road. He had been in England for five long months, and his ship had been sent back to the States for repairs.

For 12 or 13 years, it seems, Mary Hill, Mary (Mrs. Robert L.) Foreman, Alice (Mrs. Richard) Sawtell and Martha (Mrs. J. P.) Garlington have been playing bridge each Monday afternoon. Martha, as you know, is one of Atlanta's most gifted artists, so the trio of friends decided that she should paint a pastel of Bruce during his leave, without Mary Hill's knowledge. On two mornings Bruce sat for his portrait and, when it was finished, Mary and Alice framed it in the most stunning frame imaginable. The background of the pastel is pale green, to contrast with Bruce's Navy uniform, so the frame has a narrow band of blue on the inside and an old gold band on the outer edge.

The Monday after Bruce departed, Mary Hill's spirits were at low ebb. However, she mustered up her courage and set off for the meeting of her bridge club. When she arrived, the girls presented her with a large, square package, beautifully wrapped and inscribed: "From the Mondays." You can imagine Mary Hill's surprise, for it wasn't her birthday or any anniversary that she could recall. When she opened it, she was overcome with gratitude, not only for the perfect likeness which Martha had gotten of Bruce, but for the thoughtfulness of her friends.

The pastel has been hung in the most conspicuous place in the Woodruff home and whenever Mary Hill feels a tinge of loneliness for her son, she is comforted by his likeness.

CHARMING TEXAS VISITOR

Mrs. Thomas Leslie Sterne, of Victoria, Texas, owner of Shady Oaks Stock Farm, where only registered Hereford cattle are raised, is visiting Mrs. Joseph Moore at the Georgian Terrace. Mrs. Moore is also a native of Victoria, and she and Mrs. Sterne have been friends since childhood. This is Mrs. Sterne's first visit here since Mrs. Moore and her husband, who is affiliated with the Bethlehem Steel Company, came to Atlanta for residence.

Mrs. Sterne's great-grandfather was one of the original white settlers of Texas, and an officer in the defense of the Alamo. He is a cousin of the famous Gen. Sam Houston. The late Mr. Sterne's grandfather brought the first printing press into Texas and was the organizer and owner of the Victoria Advocate, one of the most successful newspapers in Texas for over 120 years.

In addition to the management of her ranch, Mrs. Sterne is an accomplished pianist and is very active in musical circles in Victoria and Houston. She is also a member of the board of Brownson Orphans' Home.

After her visit with Mrs. Moore, she will spend a month with her son and daughter, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Lamar C. Bevil, in Washington, D. C., where Cmdr. Bevil is attached to the Surgeon General's office.

EUGENIA SNOW IN CONCERT

Eugenia Snow, gifted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Snow, who is studying piano in New York with Edwin Hughes, will take her first real step toward a career as a concert pianist next Sunday. For on that date Eugenia will make her first remunerative appearance at the Peekskill Military Academy in Peekskill, N. Y., where she has been invited to give a concert.

The academy is one of the oldest military institutions in the United States, and her invitation to appear before the student body is a distinct compliment to Eugenia's musical ability. This is her second year as a student in New York in preparation for her chosen career on the concert stage.

Countess de Sieyes Feted at Luncheon

Mrs. Donald McClain entertained at an informal luncheon at her home on Cherokee road yesterday honoring the Countess Bernard de Sieyes, of Buenos Aires, who is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Harry L. Stearns, on Peachtree street.

Mrs. McClain's guests included a small group of close friends.

Church Council Board Will Meet

The executive board of the Atlanta Council of Church Women will meet on Friday at 2 p. m. in the Blue Flame room of the Atlanta Gas Light Company.

Mrs. A. H. Sterne, president of the Atlanta Council, will preside. Presidents of all women's societies and key women of all affiliated churches are requested to attend.

Atlanta D. A. R.

The Atlanta chapter D. A. R. will meet at the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan, 947 Peachtree street, N. E., Thursday at 10:30 o'clock.

MRS. JOHNNY C. PERKINS.

Mrs. Perkins is the former Miss Virginia Hynson, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hynson, of Lithonia, announce her recent marriage today. The ceremony took place at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Omer Jones, of the Virginia Avenue Baptist church. The bride wore a becoming blue tailored suit, with black accessories. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Perkins, of Austell, and has recently returned from three years of overseas duty. He is now stationed at Cherry Point, N. C., where he and his bride will reside.

Miss Mary Cromer Walker Feted at Prenuptial Parties

Additional parties to honor Miss Mary Cromer Walker whose marriage to William Scott will be a social event of next Wednesday, are announced today.

Miss Mary Jane Schumacher and Miss Florence Harrison will be cohostesses today at a luncheon at the Paradise room of the Henry Grady hotel for the bride-elect. Invited are Misses Barbara Keeler, Frances Malone, Betty Burress, Alice Danzel, Marion Knight, Gertrude Spratt, Jean Edwards, Alice Gordon and Peggy Jones, of Agnes Scott College.

On Saturday afternoon, Miss Gertrude Spratt will entertain at a bathroom shower at her home on Woodward way for Miss Walker. Mrs. Nelson Spratt will assist her daughter in entertaining.

Invited are Mesdames V. L. Walker, Earl F. Scott, W. Wailes Thomas, Glascock Reynolds, J. D. Cromer, Thomas Horton, H. A. Maier Jr., J. M. Glimpses of HOLLYWOOD

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

Hedy Completes Contract at Metro

HOLLYWOOD—Hedy Lamarr, who has recently made more pictures off the lot than on, completes her seven-year contract at Metro in March. And Hedy is not signing again. She'd rather make for herself the hundred thousand dollars the studio has been getting for her on loan-outs.

But all this won't happen until next winter, well after the birth of her expected child in the summer.

Talking about money for loan-outs, David Selznick's asking price for Joan Fontaine is now up to a hundred and fifty thousand dollars—plus a percentage on the film she makes. Dave also gets a hundred thousand dollars and a percentage for Joseph Cotten and Jennifer Jones. With all this profit coming in, I can't think why Selznick bothers to make any pictures of his own!

They're making a movie of Thomas Wolfe's lengthy book, "Look Homeward, Angel." Erskine Caldwell is writing the script. It will be quite a job to cut the volume down to movie length. David Butler is to direct Joyce Reynolds in "Janie Gets Married." This is a change for Butler, who recently completed "San Antonio," starring Errol Flynn. . . . Barbara Stanwyck is lucky—and so is Mervyn Leroy. He directs her in "The Fountainhead," with Humphrey Bogart.

From Irene Dunne to Shirley Temple—in two pictures—is the record of Herome Courtland who played the awkward adolescent in Irene's "Together Again," and is now Shirley's leading man in "Kiss and Tell." . . . Gilbert Roland, who used to be married to Connie Bennett, is now out of the Army and has an important part in "Captain Kidd," staring Charles Laughton. Randolph Scott and Barbara Britton.

Robert Taylor was refused permission by the Navy to star in "They Were Expendable." Bob didn't ask for the job, mind you; it was Metro who wanted him for the picture directed by John Ford (who didn't have the Navy's permission). . . . And it seems that the part will go to John Wayne—if he finishes "Invisible Army" in time. This picture that has been in production two months already. "Invisible Army" is about the Philippines, and every time Gen. MacArthur wins new territory, the script has to be changed.

Jeanne Crain gets an unusual leading man in "Centennial Summer"—Monty Woolley, and his beard. . . . Ralph Bellamy joins Deanna Durbin and David Bruce in "Lady On A Train." . . . "Sarah Bernhardt," starring Ingrid Bergman, has been postponed until after the war. . . . . Now that husband Maj. Cy Bartlett is stationed locally, Ellen Drew will appear in more movies. She has just signed for the feminine lead with Pat O'Brien in "Man Alive," a comedy. . . . Eddie Cantor's next film shows him as a cowboy in a western musical. Sounds amusing.

Eleanor Parker will be teamed with Humphrey Bogart in "Confidential Agent." . . . Which reminds me, it was bad luck for Miss Parker that she had Faye Emerson in "The Very Thought of You." With Faye's marriage to Col. Elliott Roosevelt, interest was somewhat withdrawn from Eleanor, although her picture was fortunately released a little ahead of Faye's marriage.

The same thing, in a different way, happened to Dolores Moran in "To Have and Have Not." The sensational success of Lauren Bacall in the picture completely overshadowed Dolores' competent work. It's tough luck to be in the same picture with an overnight celebrity—or a dog or a baby.

Walter Huston starts his own producing company soon with his son, Maj. John Huston—when the latter is discharged from the Army. Their first picture will be a re-make of "Moby Dick." Some day I'll write the story of how son John made good on his own without help from his famous father. John ran away to England where he starved quite a lot before getting his first job. Until the war, he was one of the better writers and directors in Hollywood.

Ida Lupino's new picture price is $150,000—a jump of $50,000. When you jump in Hollywood you jump high. Ida's contract with Warners was for two pictures a year for five years. It has run already four-and-a-half years and has two-and-a-half years to go—the extra two the result of a little matter known as occasional suspensions. When the contract finally is terminated, Ida will team up with her estranged husband, Louis Hayward, in an actress-producer combination.

ON THE AIR

By PAUL JONES

Suzanne Sten and Robert Weede will sing the title roles and Robert Weede will sing the role of the priest of Gaza when the Great Moments in Music program presents selections from Saint-Saens' opera, "Samson and Delilah." . . . The program will be heard over WGST at 9 p. m.

Miss Sten will do the lyrics to "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" and "The Spring Song." . . . Peerce will join her in a duet and aria from act 2, in which Samson tries to withstand the charms of Delilah. Peerce also will be heard in the Invocation and Call to Arms. . . .

Lionel Barrymore, one of the finest actors on the screen, and star of Columbia's "Mayor of the Town," will pay Frank Sinatra a call during the latter's radio program tonight. . . . The noted actor will trade quips with the "Voice" and Bill Goodman, featured comedian on the show. . . . Alex Stordahl conducts the orchestra. . . . The show will be heard at 8 p. m. over WGST. . . .

Fred Allen, the wit; Carmen Miranda, the Brazilian bombshell; Rudy Vallee, singer; Henry Busse, trumpeter and orchestra leader, and Akim Tamiroff, the hearty villain—or reasonable facsimiles thereof—will be heard on Columbia's "Which Is Which" at 8:30 p. m. today over WGST. . . .

Ken Murray, master of ceremonies, asks listeners and contestants whether these stars are actually performing before the CBS mike or really being imitated. . . . Studio contestants who guess correctly are awarded cash prizes. . . .

Checks of all sizes are seen in new spring clothes. The trim suit, left, designed by Vera Jacobs, features checks in brown and beige. Large flap pockets and turnback cuffs give a jaunty air to the short jacket. Right, an afternoon dress of powder blue crepe has a hand-drawn trim in V design on bodice and slanting pockets. This is an Eta design. Both were presented in the recent fashion shows by the New York Dress Institute.

The COOK'S NOTEBOOK

By SALLY SAVER.

Orange juice or tomato juice, and one additional fruit, milk, eggs, a cooked leafy vegetable and one or more raw foods, such as lettuce, cabbage, celery or watercress should be included in every day's meal plan to provide the protective foods necessary to the maintenance of good health. Especially is this true, if any one time can be more important than the other, at this season of the year when the bulk of our menu is likely to be made up of meat, potatoes and hearty desserts. Meat and potatoes are fine foods, but they need the balance of the others to supply the food elements lacking or present in too small quantities for health protection.

Suppose we take up the tragdy of badly poached eggs. The trick in successful poaching lies again in slow cooking. If you do not have a patented poacher, use a frying pan, filling it nearly full of boiling water, salted. Break each egg into a cup and then empty from the cup very carefully into the hot water. Repeat until you have put in the required number of eggs, turn the heat down very low so that there is no danger of the water boiling, cover the pan and let the eggs cook slowly for about 5 minutes, or until as firm as you like them. Lift them, one at a time, with a pancake turner or skimmer and slip onto pieces of buttered toast.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Previous to 12:40, noon, favors affairs in general. Keenness and alertness will be noticed in your dealings and a general attitude of harmony surrounds your transactions. After 12:40 noon be careful of undue aggression.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—The entire day favors work that is quiet and one conservative and those things where patience and stability are necessary. After 8:51 p. m. self-control will be necessary to avoid impulsiveness and irritation.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—The better vibrations of the day operate between 8:53 a. m. and 4:14 p. m. Verbal agreements after 4:15 p. m. are not favored and if it is impossible to avoid consultations and entering into contracts, be sure both sides understand each other thoroughly.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Today is a very active day, filled with strong impulses and a desire to be up and doing. The period favors business activities, unusual undertakings. If you have an idea to introduce bring it out now.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—Throughout the entire day and evening you are likely to have an over-strained, nervous and irritable feeling. The period does not especially favor new plans. Being alone, or at least holding your feelings in check, more will be accomplished.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—New beginnings today should be surprisingly successful. An excellent day for obtaining better co-operation for business, for plans benefitting others and for decisions in general.

Sept. 26-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—More success will be attained today by sticking to routine. Be deliberate in what you do and do not undertake affairs impulsively. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 12 noon.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—The combined influences today supply inspiration that is favorable for financial interests, making personal decisions, contacting superiors, as well as general business activities.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21. (SAGITTARIUS)—Very favorable influences predominate before 3:47 p. m. for general business activities, wholesale and retail trading, for dealings with professional people, for matters related to education.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—An excellent day for making progress, for organizing and systematizing your affairs. Friendly contacts should be renewed or established. An auspicious day for improving personal interests and artistic aspirations.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—This should be a very good day, for the entire period favors new and important undertakings, dealings with people who are in positions of trust and for some real constructive work. The best aspects of the day operate after 3 p. m.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Before 5:08 p. m. indicates a time when you may ask favors with the assurance that they will be granted. A good period to start new ventures, new business deals. After 5:08 p. m. your feelings many be easily ruffled and caution in all things should be the keynote.

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

(Judy is using some psychology on her mother in today's Case Record. Children are often very skillful applied psychologists, and may even excel their parents in human understanding. Indeed, many a successful business man is a failure as a father!)

CASE E-275: Judy, aged 10, is our only daughter, and midway between our four boys.

Mrs. Crane decided to take the train to Indiana to spend the weekend with her parents, for her mother was to celebrate her 80th birthday on that particular Sunday.

Mrs. Crane wrote a letter, but before it was sealed, Judy asked if she might read it. Her mother said she could.

"Do you mean this?" Judy eagerly inquired, as she showed her mother a certain paragraph.

In it, Mrs. Crane had suggested that she might bring Judy along with her for the weekend, but would leave the boys with me.

CHILD PSYCHOLOGY

A few days later, Mrs. Crane overheard Judy saying her prayers at bedtime.

". . . and Dear God, I hope you will make it possible for me to go down to the farm to see Grandma Miller on her 80th birthday."

Judy knew her mother was nearby, so I think this prayer had a double purpose, one aim of which was to jog her mother's memory and also exert some indirect psychological coercion.

Judy is clever in her use of parental psychology, for children often are quite skilful in manipulating adults.

Indeed, I have frequently met youngsters who would easily score higher than their fathers and mothers as regards an understanding of applied psychology.

LET CHILDREN RATE YOU

"My Dad's too old maldish," an eighth grader recently commented about his father, who chronically exploded because the house wasn't kept in spic and span order.

"There are four of us kids at home, and mother can't keep the place in apple pie order, the way dad's secretary does his office.

"But dad grows irritable, and makes a scene every once in awhile because he says mother is a poor housekeeper."

This father is an introvertive engineer, accustomed to having a place for everything and expecting everything to be in its place.

That's theoretically good strategy, but when a woman has a house full of children, she can't keep everything in order, unless she thwarts the main purpose of a home, which is to be a happy place for children to live.

"KAISER" TYPE OF FATHERS

Many men have a "Kaiser" attitude about their homes. They want to order their family around like slaves and make a show place of their living room.

It is possible to scare children into being terrified little wallflowers at the arrival of the male parent.

They may even sit quietly at the table if a bulldozing father browbeats them verbially or physically whips them into abject submission.

But in modern America, we don't wish to rear frightened little slaves, with no minds of their own, and no enjoyment in their homes while the male parent is present.

America is a republic not a monarchy, so our children should be encouraged to think for themselves and argue, even with adults if they have logical ideas.

This doesn't mean that no corporal punishment should be employed with children, or that habits of neatness should not be stressed, but a happy home, full of normal youngsters, looks rather messy much of the time.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you send for one of his psychological charts.)

Miss Schnedl Is Married To Ensign John Henry Kouns

MRS. JOHN HENRY KOUNS.

Miss Martha Jean Schnedl became the bride of Ens. John Henry Kouns at a recent beautiful ceremony solemnized at the Peachtree Christian church. Chaplain W. N. Weaver and Dr. Robert Burns officiated. The alter was decorated with silver urns of white gladioli and white tapers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported antique lace over satin, with fingertip veil. She carried a prayer book topped with orchids.

Miss Rex Todd Withers, maid of honor, wore fuchsia satin and carried a colonial bouquet of pastel spring flowers.

Ens. Kouns had his twin brother, Lt. William Cundiff Kouns, for best man, and Al Truan, Roy Strickland and Pvt. Richard Schnedl were ushers.

Mrs. Kouns is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton B. Schnedl, of Charlotte, N. C., and received her education at Charlotte and the University of Georgia.

Ens. Kouns is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew L. Kouns, of Huntington, W. Va. He received his education at Huntington and Georgia Tech.

Immediately after the wedding a reception was given by the bride's parents, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Farrior.

A lace cloth covered the dining table which was graced by a three-tiered wedding cake. Assisting in entertaining were: Mrs. Roy Strickland, Mrs. James Flood, Mrs. G. D. Aitken, Mrs. W. K. Smith and Mrs. E. W. Farrior.

The couple left for Minneapolis, Minn., where Ens. Kouns will be stationed. The bride wore for traveling a grape-colored suit with black accessories and a shoulder spray of orchids.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew L. Kouns, of Huntington, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Schnedl, Mrs. G. D. Aitken, Mrs. W. K. Smith and Mrs. George H. McDonald, all of Charlotte, N. C.; Lt. William C. Kouns, of Norfolk, Va. Pvt. Richard Schnedl, Auburn, Ala.; P. W. Schnedl, of West Point; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Scoggins, of Valdosta.

Miss Broyles Wed To Mr. Furguson

Miss Mary Louise Broyles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ozie T. Broyles, of Decatur, became the bride of William Preston Furguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Furguson, also of Decatur, at a ceremony performed last evening at 8 o'clock in the chapel of Glenn Memorial church.

Bowls of calla lilies adorned the altar. Dr. S. Hugh Bradley, of the Decatur Presbyterian church, officiated, and Mrs. H. A. Park, organist, and Mrs. J. M. Brisendine, soloist, presented the musical program.

Frank Broyles, brother of the bride, and Bill Campbell served as ushers.

Mrs. A. C. Reed, matron of honor, wore blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father. Harold Zeller was best man.

The bride's beauty was enhanced by her gown of white satin. Her veil of illusion was caught to her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses centered with purple-throated orchids.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Broyles entertained at an informal reception at their home honoring their daughter and Mr. Furguson.

Miss Jane Rogers presided over the bride's book.

After a trip to New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Furguson will reside at 115 Kings highway in Decatur.

MRS. MARY THOMAS, Wife.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our precious wife and mother, Mrs. Verline Garner, who passed away seven years ago today.
So quietly and suddenly came the call
Your death surprised us all;
A sudden change in a moment fell
Without a chance to say farewell.
A lone star shines over the grave
Of one we loved but could not save.
MR. R. Q. GARNER and CHILDREN.

Cost of Living Rises .3 Of One Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Labor Secretary Perkins reported today a rise of three-tenths of 1 per cent in prices of living essentials between mid-November and mid-December due to seasonal advances in the prices of fresh fruits and vegetables and continued scarcity of low-priced textiles.

As of Dec. 15, the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of living costs of moderate-income families stood as 128 per cent of the 1935-39 average, 2.1 per cent above a year earlier.

Original 'U. S.' Checks Fool Kansas, Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The Treasury warned storekeepers and banks throughout the nation today to be on guard against an "audacious fraud" involving counterfeit government checks.

Purporting to be government payments to servicemen discharged for disability, the bogus checks bear no resemblance to genuine treasury checks.

They are so ingenious and official-looking, however, the department said, that eight of them have been cashed in Kansas and Oklahoma and forwarded to the treasury.

The bogus checks are yellow—genuine treasury checks are green—and have "Disabled Veteran's Bureau"—a non-existent agency—printed on them in addition to "United States Treasury Department."

COMPARE breeding—compare health backgrounds and you will buy Schaffner Controlled Quality Chicks.

LAYING CONTESTS CHECK the egg-laying ability of Schaffner breeding. Last year, New Hampshires were high pen all heavy breeds in Oklahoma test and high New Hampshire pen and hen in Missouri. In the only tests entered with New Hampshires. This year, New Hampshires and White Leghorns rank near top in four National Egg Laying Tests.

QUICK EARLY GROWTH—For 7 years Schaffner Poultry Farm has selected stock for commercial broilers. Growers report improved feathering and sale of large lots averaging 2¾ to 3 lbs. in 11 to 12 weeks.

SOMETHING NEW ADDED—Now, Zero Pullorum Tolerance makes Schaffner Chicks easy to raise. It means we have over 32,000 breeders blood-tested again and again until not one single Pullorum carrier was found. The tolerance is ZERO, not Pullorum Tested which allows up to 4%; not Pullorum Controlled which allows up to 2% infection before the blood test is repeated.

FREE catalog. Sexing done. Write to Schaffner Poultry Farm 7 Hatchery, Box C. 249 Peters St., S. W., Atlanta 3, Georgia.

GOOD CHICKS.

2 Georgians Die in Action, 2 Missing, 18 Wounded

Two more Georgians have been killed in action, two are missing, and 18 have been wounded, according to latest War and Navy Department reports.

In all these cases next of kin have been previously notified and kept informed directly by the departments of any change in status.

Thomas A. Wall

Grover C. Prater.

Killed:

ENS. THOMAS A. WALL, 23-year-old Navy pilot, was killed in action Jan. 12 in the invasion of Luzon, the Navy Department has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wall, of Blue Ridge.

A graduate of Blue Ridge High school and North Georgia College, Dahlonega, he was a member of the Pi K. A. fraternity and was a medical student at Emory University at the time of his enlistment in December, 1942. He took his preflight training at the University of Georgia, his basic at Dallas, Texas, and received his wings April 29, 1944, at Pensacola, Fla. He went overseas Oct. 16, 1944, and at the time of his death was a fighter pilot on an aircraft carrier.

In addition to his parents, Ens. Wall is survived by a sister, Miss Barbara Wall.

CPL. EDWARD L. BRANNON, 24, was killed in action in Belgium, Dec. 29, the War Department has notified his mother, Mrs. Irene Tucker, of 393 Boulevard.

Memorial services will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday, Feb. 4, at the Emmanuel Baptist church, with the Rev. Mr. Ray and the Rev. Ben Stone officiating.

Survivors, in addition to his mother, include his father, R. C. Brannon, of Atlanta; a brother, Pfc. James F. Brannon, back from 18 months in the Asiatic-Pacific theater with the infantry, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Lou Smith and Mrs. Birdie Mae Meaders, both of Atlanta.

A former employe of Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills, Cpl. Brannon entered the Army in 1940 and received his training at Fort Benning, Ga.

Missing:

Senators Hear Of Sacrifices In Education Cause

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Senators got a glimpse today into rural America where teachers struggle along to educate the children on salaries ranging from $48 to $90 a month.

Three women gave the Senate Education Committee the picture from their own experiences, in support of a bill authorizing $300,000,000 a year in federal subsidies to schools.

There was the trim-figured and youthful Mrs. Margaret Daniel, of Richmond, Ark., principal of a three-room grade school where she and two assistants teach 65 pupils over a range of eight grades.

She's one of the "highly paid" members of her profession in Arkansas, she said, receiving $1,260 a year.

"The only reason I can get by is that I live with my parents," she said.

She was followed by Miss Wilma Puchurch, of Pershing school, in Douglas county, Nebraska, who, after 16 years as a teacher, now draws $1,125 a year.

It's hard going, she said.

The lot of Florence Christmas, a Negro principal at Antioch school in Copiah county, Mississippi, attracted even more senatorial curiosity.

She teaches the fifth to eighth grades for $60 a month. In the summer she gets more than that in a week working in a factory.

"Why teach then?" she was asked. The reply came proudly:

"It's my profession."

39th Combat Engineers Do About Everything

By SID FEDER.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy, Jan. 27.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The term "Combat Engineer" covers as much territory as a correspondent's expense account, and no bunch of soldiers can tell you more about it than the 39th C. E. Regiment now rounding out two years as a front-line "Jack of all Trades."

The "rounding out" process consists now of keeping vital Highway 65 open. This road cuts through to the Appenines between Florence and Bologna and the 39th's job, under Col. Thomas E. Green, of Austin, Texas, is not only to bandage up the ravages of war but also to keep it clear of snow and sleet.

That, of course, is what engineers are for. But, since the 39th hit Oran in January, 1943, they've done all the regular stuff, built bridges, repaired roads, cleared minefields and, when the going got tough, left their bulldozers, picks and shovels, grabbed up M-1's and took a hitch as infantrymen on three Mediterranean beachheads.

THREE IN JEEP

Three of them got into a jeep one afternoon in July, went up a road through a cornfield and captured Piombino, an important seaport in Italy. Two hours later they were at work on the blasted docks. Four days later they had the port open.

For their many accomplishments they've won commendations from two armies, a corps and three infantry divisions.

They had their first infantry mission when the first battalion landed with the Rangers on D-Day at Gela, Sicily. Then they cleared six minefields and built 97 bypasses during the 38-day campaign. At Salerno, the first battalion again landed with the infantry in the bitter beach fighting. The other two battalions came up in time for the crossing of the Volturno and assault boats carrying the 34th division across the fireswept stream were piloted by 39th engineers.

On the Anzio beachhead the regiment held the right flank along the Mussolini canal until relieved. Back in engineering harness they planted a belt of 40,000 mines under fire. During one clash a party headed by Lt. Steven Sydlik, of Dearborn, Mich., wiped out 10 Jerries and freed two captured comrades.

CAPTURES 17 JERRIES

A 39th bulldozer operator, Pvt. Richard Haralson, of Pawhuska, Okla., interrupted carving a beachhead road long enough to capture a patrol of 17 Jerries.

They expedited the breakthrough from the beachhead with an 8,000 yard road to the Appian way.

At Florence they threw a 410-foot bridge across the Arno in five days while the Germans shelled them from the northern half of the city.

Wading in mud and icy water up to his hips, Sgt. Milton Hobbs, of Detroit, directed construction of a two-way timber trestle under a treadway bridge on route 65 in an entirely original method of switching spans. In the whole operation, traffic was stopped only a few minutes.

In the office of Maj. Brad Borg, of Salt Lake City, operation officer, records show the 39th has to its credit in Italy alone 126 bridges, 77 bypasses, 123 culverts, 24 major road blocks, seven airstrips—and about 450 Purple Hearts.

Plenty 'Makings' To Keep Cigarets At Record Output

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Supplies of tobacco now appear adequate to maintain the present record level of cigaret production, the Agriculture Department said today.

In a report on the tobacco situation, the department noted that large 1944 crops now are entering manufacturers' stocks. It added that cigaret output probably cannot be materially increased unless more labor and machinery and, in some instances, more tobacco, are made available to manufacturers.

Cigaret production in 1944 for domestic use and shipment abroad was estimated at 320,000,000,000, an increase of 25,000,000,000 over 1943. It was almost double the 1939 output.

The quantity moved into civilian consumption channels was estimated at 240,000,000,000, but an unestimated portion of these went to military forces through direct government purchases from jobbers and in gifts from individuals to servicemen overseas.

Phone Line Built

SPARTA, Ga., Jan. 30.—A new telephone line is being erected by the Southern Bell Telephone Company from here to the Millmoore Farms & Milling Company, seven miles from here on Shoulderbone creek. This rural line, it is hoped, is the beginning of a network of rural lines all over Hancock county. Such a project was being surveyed when war was declared, and had to be abandoned for the duration. Seven communities in the county are still without phone connection.

12 College Heads Oppose Early Vote On Training Law

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Twelve university presidents have asked President Roosevelt to delay consideration of the "highly controversial question" of universal postwar military training "at least until complete victory over Germany is achieved."

"We suggest that experience with the prohibition amendment indicates the unwisdom of attempting to determine long-run revolutionary policies in wartime," they said in a letter made public today.

Noting in the letter, dated Jan. 24, that President Roosevelt had told congress he was convinced of the necessity for universal training after the war and intended to send a special message dealing with the subject, the educators said:

"A continuing program of public education as to the requirements of national defense is certainly in order, but we challenge the necessity of urging the American people to act under the tensions of war psychology in order to bring them to a decision which, it is said, they would not reach under more normal conditions."

Signers of the letter, which presented six reasons why they consider "present commitment of the nation to a year of military service unwise" are:

Oliver C. Carmichael, Vanderbilt; James B. Conant, Harvard; Edmund E. Day, Cornell; Harold W. Dodds, Princeton; Rufus C. Harris, Tulane; Robert M. Hutchins, Chicago; Frederick A. Middlebush, Missouri; Deane W. Malott, chancellor, University of Kansas; Robert G. Sproul, California; Donald B. Tressider, Stanford; Herman B. Wells, Indiana, and Henry M. Wriston, Brown.

McGill To Bypass Spain for Rome

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(AP)—French editors and government officials want complete freedom of the press in France after the war and hope to set up a co-operative news agency to accomplish that aim, the committee of representatives of the American Society of Newspaper Editors reported today.

"The whole press and government stand for what we in America stand for," said Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune, spokesman for the group.

The committee—Forrest; Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, and Carl W. Ackerman, dean of the Columbia School of Journalism—will leave tomorrow or the next day for Rome. A previously scheduled trip to Spain has been abandoned because of transportation difficulties.

Arkansans Ask 30-Cent Ceiling on Broilers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Representatives of north Arkansas poultry interests will ask the OPA to set a year-round ceiling price of 30 cents a pound on broilers.

Rep. Trimble, Democrat, Arkansas, said today the poultry spokesmen will confer with OPA and War Food Administration officials at a conference tomorrow.

Trimble said he has been informed Arkansas chicken production has dropped 50 per cent since price ceilings went into effect last year. Poultry interests, he said, contend they are unable to make a sufficient profit under present ceilings.

Trimble explained that ceilings are now set on a monthly basis and range from a low of 27.13 cents a pound to a high of 29.63 cents. Producers are asking that the ceilings be leveled off at a fixed year-round figure to avoid market gluts, he said.

All poultry from the Arkansas area is now consigned for Army use.
